EX-SENATOR ALDRICH DIES SUDDENLY

ARMED POSSE JAILS GIRL'S ABDUCTOR

FUGITIVE TAKEN AT GUN POINT

AUGUSTA, Me., April 16.—An all-night man hunt by 500 armed and infuriated citizens, police and soldiers through Mt. Pleasant woods, in search of Julian Kittredge, who was accused of luring twelve-year-old Doris Brown into the woods, resulted at 7:30 today in the capture of Kittredge at the point of a militiaman's rifle.

The fury of the search had been increased at 4 o'clock this morning by the discovery of the girl staggering along on her way back through the woods. She sobbed out that Kittredge had sent her back when the chase became too hot. She told a fearful story of fighting the man all night.

Within an hour after the girl was found Kittredge was twice surrounded and twice had slipped through the armed lines.

SPURRED ON BY GIRL'S STORY.

Spurred on to their utmost by the little girl's story and by Kittredge's double evasion of their lines, the searchers pressed on so fiercely that an advance squad caught sight of the fugitive at 7:30, two miles in the deepening woods.

Deputy Marshal Sewall Glidden and Private Ralph Bryant of Company M, Second Regiment, Maine National Guard, who were scouting side by side, spied Kittredge at the same time

FORMER SENATOR ALDRICH DIES OF APOPLEXY IN NEW YORK CITY

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island died here today in his seventy-fourth year, following a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered yesterday.

Mr. Aldrich had been failing for several years and had taken several ocean voyages in the hope of regaining his health. It was supposed when he returned from his last sea trip that he had been considerably benefited.

The end came suddenly today at the ex-Senator's home, No. 998 Fifth avenue. Mr. Aldrich had passed most of his time in New York after retiring from the United States Senate, where he was one of the leading Republican figures for many years.

Mr. Aldrich was one of the foremost students of financial and economic affairs that the United States has ever produced. During his long term in the service of the public he was identified with many important political issues, the chief of which were tariff and monetary reform.

Mr. Aldrich was born in Foster, R. I., November 6, 1841. His mind turned toward politics and immediately after he finished his education he became active in public affairs. In 1875 he was elected a member of the Rhode Island House of Representatives and during 1876 and 1877 was Speaker of that body.

Mr. Aldrich was first elected to Congress in 1879, serving during the Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Congresses in the House of Representatives.

In 1881 Mr. Aldrich was elected to the United States Senate to succeed General A. E. Burnside, who died during his term in office. Mr. Aldrich was re-elected to the Senate in 1886, 1892, 1898 and 1905.

When his term expired in 1911 he declined another nomination in order to devote all his time to the affairs of the National Monetary Commission. Mr. Aldrich had been made chairman of this commission upon its inception in 1908 and was keenly interested in its work.

Considerable criticism was directed toward Senator Aldrich because of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, of which he was a joint author, and also because of the stand he took upon the Central Bank plan.

The Senator was the father-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his daughter, Miss Abby Greene Aldrich, having married the son of the oil king. Mr. Aldrich was a man of commanding personality and in appearance resembled greatly the late oil magnate, H. H. Rogers. He was very rich and maintained a residence in Providence, another in New York city, as well as a country place at Warwick, R. I.

SWEDISH LINER SUNK; 9 PERISH

By International News Service.

LONDON, April 16.—Nine personsare believed to have perished when the Swedish steamer Folke was sunk off Paterhead Wednesday night by a mine or torpedo. Seven members of the crew were landed at Aberdeen last night by the trawler Fuber Price, but the captain, seven sailors and stewardess who were in another boat are still missing. The steamer sank two hours after she was blown up.

Possibility of war between Germany and Holland was frankly discussed by the Amsterdam Telegraaf today, which denounced the sinking of the Dutch steamer Katwyk as "a crime." It intimated, however, that Holland would take no military action without careful consideration, saying:

"If Holland has to enter the war it must be the Dutch government who chooses the moment, not the government having these cowardly assassine."

Grand Duke Nicholas said:

"I desire to fight with the gallant Italian army because it is only thus that Italy can completely gain her national aspirations."

"I have several times invited Italy to align herself with the triple entente," wrote M. Sazonoff. "Her national aspirations would thereby be amply fulfilled."

LONDON PREPARES FOR RAID

By International News Service.

LONDON, April 16.—Following the Zeppelin raid of last night, in which one of the German dirigibles was within ten miles of London, a German aeroplane today dropped bombs on the towns of Faversham and Sittingbourne.

These towns are in Kent, on the road to Chatham, and but a few miles from the mouth of the Thames River.

The raid of last night was the second within thirty hours and was the nearest approach to London of any hostile body since the war began.

AUSTRIANS DRIVE RUSSIANS BACK

BY STEVEN BURNETT.

Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, April 16.—Austrian forces advancing eastward from the Dunajec River have driven opposing Russian forces in western Galicia back from 12 to 25 miles at various points, according to official reports from army headquarters.

Driving the Russians before them the Austrians have crossed the Biala River at Cleskowice, cutting the Tarnow-Grybow railroad which had been depended on in large measure by the Russians for supplying their troops at Dukla Pass.

East of the Biala the Russians are concentrating large masses of men to stop the Austrian advance against their right wing.

A general battle is imminent on the plain between the Biala and Ropa Rivers. Cleskowice, where the Austrians crossed the Biala, is about forty miles northwest of Dukla Pass. While none of the official reports state the number of men engaged in this Austrian offensive, it is understood here that at least four and a half corps, 180,000 men, are moving against the Russians.

ALLIES IN BATTLE TO GAIN CONTROL OF ARRAS-LILLE RAILWAY

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,

Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, April 16.—Renewing their offensive in order to open the way for an attack against the German position at Lille, French and British troops are attacking the German lines between Arras and La Bassee in an effort to gain control of the Arras-Lille railway line. Extensive mining operations are varied with severe artillery duels and fierce infantry attacks.

Near Notre Dame de Lorette and Ablain St. Nazaire, north of Arras, the French have been successful in capturing some of the German trenches and destroying others with artillery and mines.

Fighting continues in the Wesvre district, where there is much aerial activity. German air scouts that were trying to spy out the French movements were shelled and one was brought to earth.

The National Zeitung of Basle states that French aviators bombarded three German towns on April 13, dropping bombs upon Villingen, Donaueschingen and Krotzingen.

ZEPPELINS IN RAID ON ENGLAND BUT TEN MILES FROM LONDON

The rapid succession of the raids and the increasing daring of the German airmen has led to the belief on the part of the authorities here that the long-expected aerial attack on London is at hand.

It was learned that the Taube dropped several bombs upon Faversham and then proceeded to Sittingbourne, where it dropped one bomb that fell in an orchard. No material damage was done at either town. After passing over Sittingbourne, the Taube headed for Queensborough and Sheerness, with a British aeroplane in pursuit.

Changing its direction a second time the Taube flew off in the direction of Deal. From a height of six hundred feet it dropped a bomb upon a chalk quarry. This caused no damage.

The Star prints a report that a German aeroplane of the Taube type was brought down near East Church.

SPECIAL WARNINGS.

Precautions taken here today indicated that the authorities fear a great Zeppelin raid upon London tonight. Special warnings were sent out that any notice to extinguish lights must be immediately obeyed under penalty of arrest.

To assist the police in enforcing this order and to prevent panic if the attack is made, the special force of 7,000 constables organised since the war began was instructed to report at Scotland Yard at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. Weather conditions today were ideal for aerial operations.

The raids of Thursday night and this morning were regarded in official circles as reconnoitering expeditions whose success would incite the Germans to a greater effort.

Only one person, a woman, is known to have been injured by the missiles dropped from the German dirigibles. She was struck by flying debris in her home at Lowestoft.

Three Zeppelins took part in the raids of last night.

The most damage was sustained at Lowestoft in Suffolk, on the North Sea, where a lumber yard was set on fire and where several houses were partly destroyed by bombs.

The brunt of the attack was borne by towns in the neighborhood of the estuary of the Blackwater, in the Essex marshes, about thirty miles from London and directly opposite the British naval base at Chatham.

It is believed that the Germans plannned to attack the British naval base, but miscalculated their way owing to the height at which the airships had to travel to avoid the high angle guns on land.

TWELVE BOMBS HURLED.

After attacking Lowestoft the Germans dropped bombs upon Maldon, in Essex, thirty miles from London, which point was reached at midnight. Although twelve bombs were hurled, only one building, a workshop, was wrecked, but glass was broken in hundreds of windows in residences and the inhabitants were scared into panic.

The airship passed off in the direction of Harwich. At Harwich no bombs were dropped.

The Zeppelin squadron seems to have reached the British coast, at about 11 o'clock, for an airship was reported as having been seen at Hull at 11:15 o'clock.

A dispatch from Amsterdam reported that three Zeppelin airships passed Vlieland Island at 8 a. m. today, flying eastward. They were believed to be the airships which nearly reached London.

The authorities are taking steps to put into effect all the previous stringent rules made to guard the capital at night against attacks by hostile air raiders and the citizens have been warned against displaying lights.

Great activity in the German air corps is evident. The monster dirigibles have taken to the air with the first sign of favorable Spring weather.

News of their flights has come from many incoming ships and islands along the Dutch coast.

Bombs were also dropped in or near Haybridge Basin, Southwold and Halesworth, but aside from a few minor fires no damage was reported. Telegrams came from about a dozen cities where the residents were reported to have seen airships overhead, but in the panicky state of the population it is believed that many only imagined they saw dirigibles.

Altogether about one hundred bombs were dropped from the German raiders. Whether or not the balloons all escaped safely is not positively known, but it is believed that they did. Heavy firing was reported from Sheerness and Gravesend, where airships were reported to have been seen making their way to sea.

The point nearest to London reached by the Germans was Dagenham which is only 11½ miles from Mansion House in the centre of the city. A balloon passed over Dagenham at 1 o'clock, traveling very swiftly from a direction of the North Sea. Shortly afterwards it passed over Harwich. Flashes of fire were seen in the air as the craft crossed the mouth of the harbor toward Felixstowe. When last seen this airship was beating its way toward Ipswich.

From Shoeburyness came a report that a Zeppelin and two German aircraft were seen between 12 o'clock and 1 traveling south from Lowestoft. This information led to the report that the Zeppelins were convoyed by one or more German aeroplanes.

ANOTHER NEUTRAL SHIP TORPEDOED

clare that repeated German attacks upon Dutch shipping, culminating in the destruction of the Dutch steamer Katwyk, were the subject of a long discussion at a special cabinet meeting today. It was decided to make another protest at Berlin and to instruct the minister of Holland there to insist upon a reply being made at the earliest possible moment.

Previous attacks upon Dutch shipping have been regarded by the Dutch as possibly due to the difficulty of ascertaining the identity of the vessels sailed, but it was asserted here today that the submarine that sank the Katwyk had plenty of opportunity to learn whether the ship belonged to a neutral nation.

PLAINLY MARKED.

The wireless operator of the North Hinder lightship has reported that the Katwyk was at anchor when torpedoed and that he saw a German submarine in the vicinity for two hours before the Katwyk was attacked.

The Katwyk was plainly marked to show her nationality. The Dutch government had ordered every possible precaution taken to protect her from destruction because the fact that her cargo had been purchased for Holland.

Following an examination of the master and crew of the Katwyk the following official statement was issued by the Dutch Ministry of Marine:

"The captain cast anchor in twenty fathoms of water seven miles west of the North Hinder lightship. The anchor light was immediately lighted, as well as two electric lamps illuminating the flags fore and after, fifteen and ten feet in length respectively. Between the flags in big letters were the words 'Katwyk, Rotterdam.'

FELT HEAVY SHOCK.

"The second mate and two sailors were busy with the lamps. Besides the lookout standing on the bridge, nobody else was on deck. Suddenly a heavy shock was felt and the mate observed a column of water on the port side. The lamps were thrown out and fire started immediately.

"The captain and crew hastened on deck and took to the boats, remaining near the sinking vessel for some time. Suddenly they observed a submarine emerging showing no number and with none of the crew visible.

"The Katwyk's captain shouted a request that the submarine tow the boats to the lightship, but no attention was paid to him and the submarine disappeared in the darkness. The Katwyk disappeared beneath the water in twenty minutes and the boats were rowed to the lightship."

The Amsterdam Telegraaf, a very influential newspaper, says: "We must expect that the German government will, without loss of time, be made responsible for this severe violation of the rights of neutral powers."

PHILADELPHIA VOTES TO SEND LIBERTY BELL TO PANAMA FAIR

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Liberty Bell, the treasured emblem of the birth of the nation's independence, will cross the continent and be exhibited at the Panama Pacific Exposition as a direct result of the efforts of William Randolph Hearst.

A joint resolution, passed by the Select and Common Councils and approved by Mayor Blankenburg today authorizing the removal of the historic relic from Independence Hall, represented a complete reversal of the sentiment against the trip west which existed until ten days ago.

The action of the Philadelphia authorities was unanimous. The resolution provided that $20,000 be appropriated for the expense of the journey. A committee of 24 will be selected from the members of the Select and Common Councils to act as the official escort.

An honorary committee to consist of ten or more of the most distinguished citizens of the United States is also contemplated. The date for the start of the patriotic pilgrimage has not been set. It has been decided, however, that if a northern route is selected for the outward trip a swing around the southern circuit of States will be made on the homeward journey.

GRATEFUL TO MR. HEARST.

The chief object in view besides furnishing a valued attraction at the exposition is to give the rising generation of the outlying districts of the country an opportunity to see the Liberty Bell.

While the question of financing the trip was under discussion Mr. Hearst sent this message to the authorities:

"I personally will guarantee the money necessary to transport the bell in a private car and a committee to accompany it."

Commenting upon this offer, John W. Connelly, chairman of the finance committee of the Common Council, said:

"Mr. Hearst's offer to bear the expense of taking the bell to San Francisco is most generous and is appreciated for the patriotic spirit which prompted it. Philadelphia, however, cannot afford to let the fund come from any other source than our own treasury. We are glad to contribute to the exposition in this way, as the trip of the bell across the country will serve a double purpose."

In this effort on behalf of the people of California and Great West, Mr. Hearst had the warm support of Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, former President William Howard Taft, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Hon. John Hays Hammond, Nathan Straus, George F. Baker, Isaac N. Seligman and numerous other prominent and distinguished men.

APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM.

When the work was first undertaken sentiment in Philadelphia and throughout Pennsylvania was almost unanimous against the bell being removed again. The opposition was so strong that experts were asked to give as their opinion that the physical condition of the metal in the bell would not permit of the trip without dire consequences. Others charged that the Philadelphia authorities only desired to arrange a junket for their own amusement.

Mr. Hearst made his appeal along high patriotic lines and this opposition was overcome. This change of sentiment was largely brought about through the editors and publishers of Philadelphia newspapers, several of whom were at first leaders of the opposition.

When the resolution went before the Council today there was practically no opposition in the newspaper field. The prominent publishers who supported the plan were: Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of the Ledger; William L. McLean, the Bulletin; E. A. Van Valkenburg, the North American; Michael Hanson, the Record; Richard Beamish, the Press, and William L. Elkenton, the Inquirer.

The adoption of the resolution follows a special message from Mayor Blankenburg, which was received by the Common and Select Councils in joint session. The message recited the resolution adopted by the Legislature of California and the numerous requests from prominent persons to exercise it said:

"The request for the bell is so widespread and its sending will, I believe, do so much to create a renewed feeling of patriotism at all points where it may stop on the route to the exposition, that no further argument is needed for your honorable bodies to join with me in arrangements to send our precious relic to San Francisco."

MESSAGE FROM MR. MILES

The following highly patriotic message was received by both councils from General Miles:

"I earnestly recommend sending Liberty Bell to San Francisco. It will echo the spirit of the glorious past and inspire patriotism for the future. Let the people hear it and rejoice as did our fathers when sovereign citizenship was created and established."

The message from Secretary Lane said in part:

"Such a passage would stir the patriotism of our people at every station of the journey and upon its arrival in San Francisco the whole Pacific Coast would join in a great celebration."

Former President Taft said:

"We are all in favor of making the Panama Exposition as much of a success as possible, and I have no doubt it would greatly contribute to the public interest in the exposition if Liberty Bell could be sent there and made the centre of appropriate ceremonies. Doubtless, too, its progress across the country would attract patriotic appreciation."

The touch of human interest in the appeal from Nathan Straus, the merchant prince of New York, was most effective. Mr. Straus said:

"If the city of Philadelphia will send Liberty Bell to the Pacific Coast, where it may be seen at the Panama Pacific Exposition, the city fathers will earn the gratitude of millions of men, women and children throughout the West. For myself, in my younger days in Georgia, I looked forward with great anticipation to seeing this emblem of liberty and independence, and my own gratification on beholding it is my index to the feelings of the people who have never yet had that opportunity. I hope your honorable body will grant the request of the Great West for its chance to pay tribute to old Liberty Bell."

Judge Norris S. Barratt:

"I believe from the utterances I have heard the country needs to see Liberty Bell. It can do more to create friendliness and patriotism by just such a trip than the efforts of all patriotic societies and clubs could accomplish in a long time."

RESOLVE IS SIGNED.

The substance of the resolution, which was promptly signed by Mayor Blankenburg, follows:

Whereas, The Governor, the Senate and House of Representatives of California; His Honor the Mayor and the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco; the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, public officials and school children throughout the West have earnestly requested that the "Old Liberty Bell" be sent to the Panama-Pacific Exposition now being held in San Francisco City, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Select and Common Councils of the City of Philadelphia, that those requests be complied with, and that a joint special committee of twelve (12) members from each chamber be appointed by the presidents of the respective chambers to make the necessary arrangements for the exhibition of the "Old Liberty Bell" at the said exposition. 3 Harvard Men in Auto Accident

Three Harvard students were thrown from the automobile in which they were riding when the steering gear broke at Commonwealth avenue and Fuller street, West Newton. The machine ran across the sidewalk, crashed through a stone wall and plunged down a five-foot bank. No one was injured. The owner was Raymond W. Stanley of Hyde avenue, Newton. He was accompanied by Roland M. Cook and Milton H. Bird.

Paint Letter 'E' on Goddess of Justice

EXETER, N. H., April 16.—A large red "E" decorated the back of the figure of the goddess of Justice on the roof of the town hall. The prank was played at some risk, for the statue is nearly 100 feet from the ground.

Boston College '09 Dines.

Preferred New York to Husband's Love

CHICAGO, April 16.—"She looked Chicago over and said it was in the zero class as a place to live in," testified Henry C. Bradfield, formerly of New York, in a divorce suit. "She was in love with New York and wouldn't leave it, though my business made Chicago my home," he continued. "This burg is the limit,' was all she said, and returned to New York." He obtained a decree.

HUERTA TELLS OF ATROCITIES

(By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 16.—General Victoriano Huerta has issued a scorching statement at the Hotel Ansonia on Mexican affairs. He said in part:

"Anarchy is too soft a word to term the present situation in Mexico. In the last eight months, since I left the country, tens of thousands of peaceful, law-abiding citizens have been killed. New tortures, unknown in times of the inquisition, have been discovered by human brutes to make their brothers and foreigners suffer.

"Why, to possess a gold watch, a ten-dollar bill, is sufficient a crime to cause one's execution. Young girls and matrons are violated in the presence of their fathers, brothers, mothers and husbands.

"Nuns have been dishonored by the score."

In an impromptu interview the grizzled old Indian smilingly admitted (though more by inference than direct assent) that he is awaiting "a call to service" from the country of his nativity.

DEATH OF MADERO.

Huerta grew serious when asked to relate the true story of the death of Madero. His squat figure shook with emotion. "That is the professional secret of a soldier that I must keep locked in my breast," he exclaimed. "The unjust accusation that put Madero to death is the chief torture of my life. But the day is near when the world will know the truth. Then I will be revealed as one of the heroes of history.

"Mr. Madero, while being conducted to the penitentiary, died an unnatural death. In the opinion of some of the public in this country I am blamed as having taken part in the execution of him. I have never tried to shirk any responsibilities and anything I ever did was done openly. I am man enough to stand by what I do. I know I am not to blame for the death of Mr. Madero. Time and history will do me justice.

"But I must say that during my administration all the law abiding citizens of my republic as well as all the foreign residents there, until the very last moment of my command, received guarantee, and their homes, their lives and their property were fully protected.

APPEAL TO FOREIGNERS.

"I appeal to the testimony of Spanish, German, French and English colonies, and especially to the American colony residents in Mexico. They will and do confirm what I say.

"Unfortunately, and for our shame, numerous crimes have been committed against foreigners on Mexican soil during the last four years and a half. Englishmen were cowardly assassinated, more than three hundred Chinamen were brutally slaughtered in Torreon; German women were brutally violated in Covedonga; Spaniards were butchered in Atencingo and other places; foreign and native ministers of the church were shamelessly mistreated, but these crimes were committed either before or after my time or by rebels in the interior whom I could not control. These are the results of the anarchical propaganda of Mr. Madero and his followers.

DEFENDS HIS RULE.

"Never mind, Mexico will be saved by a Mexican. By a strong Mexican, not by a bandit. Not by men that kill for the sake of money or dastardly passion, but by a Mexican who will act as a surgeon who will cure the sores, who will amputate the dead parts of the national body. Then Mexico will revive and will be the paradise on earth it deserves to be. Where is the man? Who is the man? When will the man appear? I do not know."

Defending his administration, General Huerta said:

"I did not print any bogus money. I never called on anybody for forcible loans. Not a single banking institution went to the wall during my administration. They all paid dividends. Not a single business house shut its doors. I tried to build up. I did not want to destroy."

A covert attack upon President Wilson is contained in the following:

"The heads of your administration were not fair to Mexico, but I believe they were misled by false statements. Besides, there is quite a difference between theory and facts. If your administrators had only been in Mexico for thirty days, they would have changed their theoretical, erroneous ideas.

"But I would rather not discuss the subject too deeply. It is a discourtesy, you know, for a foreigner to criticise heads of a nation whose hospitality he enjoys."

INTENSE ITCHING BURNING OF SKIN

Trouble on Hands. Suffered Awfully. Could Not Put Hands in Water. Used Cuticura. In a Month Would Never Know Hands Were Sore.

"I Beacon St., Lynn, Mass.—"My hands broke out with little pimples on my hands. They would fill with a watery substance and would break. After a while the whole backs and palms of my hands were inflamed. I suffered awfully with the itching and burning. I would scratch until my hands were red, the itching and burning were so intense. I would keep awake half the nights. I could not put my hands in water for just as soon as it touched them I would almost go crazy. For one year and a half I could not do my work.

"I tried everything anybody told me about. My hands were sore two years before I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The first time I used them I felt relieved and the itching began to stop. In a month you would never know that my hands were ever sore." (Signed) Mrs. Susie N. Edson, Oct. 1, 1914.

SULLIVAN GIRL TO PUSH HOE SUIT

NEW YORK, April 16.—Mae Sullivan, who last May sued young Arthur I. Hoe, for $250,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry and $150,000 for alleged breach of contract to support her, announces that, although the jury disagreed at the first trial, the case would not be dropped, and would come up again early next Fall.

Miss Sullivan came to the county court house to consult with David C. Myers, who replaced Mirabeau L. Towns, as her attorney.

"I will be twenty-one years of age in August," she said, "and will be able to bring any action myself. Last time I had to appear through a guardian. The case will probably come to trial in September. I must be vindicated. Mr. Hoe met me when I was young and unsophisticated, and I can't see why he should not be made to suffer from the wrong he has done me."

End Telephone and Telegraph Inquiry

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The investigation into the rates, finances and practices of the telephone and telegraph companies, which the Interstate Commerce Commission has been conducting, was dismissed today. It was stated at the commission's offices that this inquiry was the "customary probe into the affairs of both corporations," and that a statement on the matter would be issued later.

READ CIRCULARS ON 'LUCKY STONE'

Testimonial circulars played a prominent part today at the trial before Judge Aldrich and a jury in the Federal Court of Captain Walter I. Rand, inventor of the "Oriental Lucky Stones," who is charged with using the United States mails to further a scheme to defraud in the sale of the stones.

One testimonial read by Postoffice Inspector W. E. Hurley was:

Dear Captain Rand:

I have one of your lucky stones. I have had splendid luck. Everything is coming my way.

Minneapolis M. J. RYAN.

Another read:

Captain Rand:

When my husband came home I showed him the lucky stone and told him all the luck I had with it and he wants one.

MRS. JAMES P. LOQUE.

California.

Still another subscriber wrote:

My friend asked me to rite for one of the lucky stones.

Inspector Hurley read excerpts from Rand's circulars, among them one in which Captain Rand wrote:

No. 175 D. Tremont street.

Dear Friend:

A mutual friend requested me to send you the story of my life. I want to say I have travelled through India and the Orient. While travelling I procured a few lucky stones. I secured rare stones in India.

Admiral George Dewey, Admiral George Hewitt and Admiral Houston have some of the stones and have enjoyed good luck. If you want one send $1.

Inspector Hurley was asked by Assistant United States District Attorney Shea to relate interviews which he had with Captain Rand at the latter's office on Tremont street. One interview lasted two hours and the other forty-five minutes.

Former Assistant United States District Attorney John H. Casey is counsel for Captain Rand.

Attorney Casey—What was your purpose in going to Captain Rand's office?

Inspector Hurley—To see whether his business was legitimate. He told me his business had been investigated before. He said he had had trouble in 1901, and that he took the correspondence to Washington, where it was examined."

George A. Cary, government appraiser at the Boston Custom House, testified that some of the lucky stones exhibited were worth about five cents, and that the cost might be somewhat higher if cost of importation and transportation were figured.

Attorney Casey got Appraiser Cary to admit that a stick pin was worth at least 50 cents, and that three hat pins were worth 50 cents.

Refugee Professor Coming to Harvard

Harvard is to have in Professor de Wulf of the University of Louvain a new refugee professor. Professor de Wulf is one of the greatest present day mediaevalists, and his course is on a subject which heretofore has been scantily treated at the university. The Department of Philosophy and Psychology has announced several changes and additions in the instruction. Professor Hatori, the new exchange professor from Japan, will give four half courses dealing with Confucius and his effect on Japanese life and thought.

Husband and Wife Are Found Killed

WOONSOCKET, April 16.—Ignazy Poczapski, twenty-five, killed his wife, Annie, twenty-three, and then killed himself in a room in a boarding house at No. 150 North Main street. Before committing the act he locked three children belonging to another family in an adjoining room.

The tragedy occurred following a quarrel between the couple, which, it is claimed, resulted from jealousy on the part of Mrs. Poczapski.

BILLY SUNDAY TELLS DRAMATIC STORY OF CRUCIFIXION

PATERSON, N. J., April 16.—Ten thousand persons at Paterson saw and heard Billy Sunday in a wonderful description of the Crucifixion. Many of them sat spellbound with awe at the scene depicted. Others leapt as the evangelist portrayed the tragedy, driving an imaginary spike through his hand, and described the agony of Christ on the cross.

Sunday's second call for trail hitup to the platform. Of this number 96 were men. One trail hitter was a minister, the Rev. Maurice Winfred Lewis, pastor of the Prospect Park Baptist Church of Paterson.

Sunday cried: "How many men or women, whether you are church members or not, will say, 'I'll live my best for Jesus Christ?' How many will come up and take my hand and give themselves to the Saviour?

"Come on now, get up from your seats and come down."

The new trail hitters make a total of 731 converts as he has made in the two times he asked the people to come forward.

Rumors to the effect the members of the I. W. W. were coming to town caused a stir at the tabernacle when seven or eight recognized members put in an appearance.

I. W. W., TO HOLD OFF.

A leader of the I. W. W. announced that no meeting of the organization would be held against Sunday during the campaign.

The members of the "Experience" company came over from New York prepared to "hit the trail."

They wore their most fetching hats, their best laced-up-the-side boots and their winningest smiles as they entered the tabernacle, and all exclaimed, "My, what a house!" when they saw the crowd. The crowd used both its eyes in looking them over.

Both Billy and "Ma" Sunday were considerably fussed when the girls were presented. Billy was so embarrassed he forgot to take off his hat. This followed:

Chorus: "Now Mr. Sunday, we have come over to see you; you ought to come up to the show and see us."

Bill: "Glad to see you, ladies; but you know I never go to a theatre."

Ma: "It's perfectly sweet of you ladies to come over here, so far, when you have to work so hard at night."

Chorus: "O, O, Mrs. Su-nd-ay, how dear of you to say that!"

But Billy fooled the Broadway belles. He didn't call for trail Ritters. The girls would have hit the trail—every smiling one of them—for there were no orders. But Billy was probably afraid if they did there would be too great a rush to the front seats.

GANG MEMBERS JOIN.

Eight members of a Paterson gang, the "Rat Talk," who had been won over in the afternoon by Jack Cardiff, Billy's scrappy little physical trainer with the bowery dialect, came sheepishly forward and extended hands.

"You're all right, fellers, go to it. God bless you," exclaimed Sunday to them.

It was a very busy time that Billy had. First he met a delegation of 150 ministers who were sent over from Brooklyn to invite him to hold a revival there.

The evangelist plans three great meetings on Sunday.

During his sermon he said:

"I detest any man who will trim his sails to catch a breeze of passing popularity, and fight under a doubtful flag. I love to see a person come clear out for God without compromise. One of the most uncomplimentary things that can be said at your funeral is that you had no enemies. If you live an uncompromising life for Christ, you will have enemies.

"Many of our churches are not more than mere social organizations. They spend more time developing along social lines than along spiritual lines. The old time fire and spirit are lacking.

"So there were eight in the first group, three in the second group, and James alone forms the third. The largest number in the first group—farthest from Jesus—nearest to the world. That has always been true of any church I knew anything about. The nearer you get to Jesus the more elbow room you will have—the less the crowd.

"Judas bought a ticket for hell for thirty pieces of silver, and it wasn't a round trip ticket either. Judas never suspected that Jesus was near that first bunch. Judas knew that crowd through and through. I sometimes wonder whether the church needs new members or not half as much as she needs the old bunch made over.

NO "PULLMANS TO HEAVEN."

"Judging by the way multitudes in the church live you would think they imagined they had a through ticket to heaven in a Pullman palace car, and had left orders for the porter to wake them up when they headed into the yards of the New Jerusalem. If that's the case you will be doomed to disappointment, for you will be sidetracked with a hot box.

"If I had a hundred tongues, and every tongue speaking a different language in a different key at the same time, I could not do justice to the splendid chaos that the world-loving, dancing, card-playing, whiskey-guzzling, gin-fizzling, novel-reading crowd in the church brings to the cause of Christ.

"Do you wish God to reveal the deep things of the spirit to you? Then turn your back on the sinful things and creep close to His side. Jesus will never unfold his revelations to you when you are lined up in front of a bar drinking, or when you are at a baseball game on the Sabbath, or living in sin. Jesus did not ask the first group near the edge of the garden to pray. Perhaps they would have refused.

"Every minister knows there are certain members of his church whom he never thinks of asking to lead in prayer; in fact, they never darken a prayer meeting door. If a card party takes place on prayer meeting night they go to the party. Yet we wonder why this old sin-blighted world is not down on her knees. I am amazed that the Lord is doing as well as he is with the crowd he has to work with."

A PERSONAL REFERENCE.

"Pardon a personal reference. I was born in Iowa. I was a rube of the rubes. I have greased my hair with goosegrease. I have blacked my boots with stoveblacking. I have wiped my face on a gunnysack towel. I have eaten with my knife. I have drank coffee out of my saucer. I have said 'done it' when I should have said 'did it,' 'came' for 'come,' and 'seen' for 'saw.' I am a graduate from the university of poverty and hard knocks, and I have taken postgraduate courses.

"There are influences in the world worse than an alligator, and they are ripping and tearing to shreds our virtue and morality. Young men are held by intemperance, others by vice. Drunkards are crying to the church, 'Hurry faster!' and the church members sit on the bank playing cards, sit there drinking beer and reading novels.

"Hurry!

"They are splitting hairs over fool things instead of trying to keep sinners out of hell!

"Faster, faster, faster! Lord is it I?"

Paderewski Here to Help Poland

NEW YORK, April 16.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the pianist, is here to help in raising funds for the relief of Poland. "Russian Poland is seven times more devastated than Belgium," he said, "as it has been the scene of fighting back and forth of the Russians and Germans. My visit here is to organize and unite all those who are ready and willing to work for Polish relief into a body which will have its centre in Lausanne, Switzerland, from which place I have just come."

'BILLY HAS PUNCH,' SAYS 'TOODLES'

PATERSON, N. J., April 16.—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who testified Harry K. Mansfield, whom she unsuccessfully sued in Boston for alleged breach of promise, called her "Toodles," was one of the most interested, and interesting, auditors in Billy Sunday's tabernacle. She came over from New York with members of the "Experience" company to return the visit Sunday paid to Broadway the first of the week.

Miss Ryan, following the disagreement of the jury in her suit, returned to the company in New York, in which she portrays "Fashion" in a tableau. "Toodles" was one of those Sunday introduced to "Ma" Sunday following the service.

Miss Ryan was one of six members of the cast of "Experience" who sat in front seats. Here are their impressions of the evangelist:

PEGGY DANA (Excitement)—Mr. Sunday has a wonderful personality. He moved my very soul.

BESSIE "TOODLES" RYAN (Fashion)—I think he is a charming fellow. He is there with the punch.

MARION WHITNEY (Frivolity)—He certainly gets the ball over the plate. He is very convincing.

ELEANOR CHRISTY (Intoxication)—I was disappointed. I thought he was going to have a fit but he did not. He was frank.

MADELINE HOWARD (Beauty)—I thought he would give us a rough and tumble fight with the Devil, but he just spoke the truth.

FRANCES RICHARDS (Slander)—I'm never going to slander any one again. Mr. Sunday made a great impression on me.

"Delighted to meet you," and "It's awfully nice of you to stop in half day and come over here to Paterson to hear me," was the way Sunday smilingly greeted the girls.

Freshmen at Harvard Again to Vote on Beer

Members of Harvard's baby class are not satisfied with the vote which turned the class into the wet column and Harry Farries of Madison, N. J., and Ralph Damon of Pascoag, R. I., have rushed into Crimson paint denying absolutely that the majority of the freshies like the flowing bowl so well that they vote for it. The boys say:

"The vote taken at the freshman smoker Wednesday evening should not be considered as an expression of the opinion of the whole class. The 226 votes for beer and the 181 against represent only 407 freshmen out of a catalogued total of 795. In other words, the opinion of three-sevenths of the class has not yet been given."

In order to settle the argument conclusively a postcard canvas is to be carried out in the 1915 men before requested to answer the following questions:

How many more smokers do you want this year?

Do you prefer moving pictures or vaudeville.

Do you prefer beer or soft drinks?

Held Up and Robbed Near Police Station

Andrew Boschetto, thirty of No. 11 Haines street, East Boston, reported to the East Boston police today that at 10:15 a. m. at Maverick and Paris streets, two young men attacked and robbed him of $40 and a gold watch. The scene of the alleged hold-up is within a stone's throw of the police station and near the entrance of the East Boston tunnel, where hundreds of people pass every minute. The police are investigating.

BIG GERMAN FLEET READY FOR BATTLE

Boston American and London Times Exclusive Cable Service.

LONDON, April 16.—A dispatch from Copenhagen states that a large German cruiser and torpedo boat flotilla are reported moving northward today between the Island of Bornholm and the Swedish coast.

The London Times naval expert writes:

"The report of the movement in the German high sea fleet of cruiser squadrons in the North Sea and destroyers off the coast of Holland should not be passed over lightly. There are circumstances which lend support to the idea of increased activity by these forces. It would be strange if appointment of the new commander-in-chief, Admiral Von Pohl, is not followed by signs of renewed vigorous naval activity.

"In this month the fleet receives considerable additions to its strength. It is probable the cruisers Derflinger, Seydlitz and Von Der Tann are now ready and on the fleet. Indeed, it is stated they have been to sea again. The vessels which were in various stages of completion at the beginning of the war, should now be finished and passed into commission. These units form an appreciable accession of strength.

"The movements of the German navy are never purposeless. They must not be regarded with complacency, but considered in connection with the general situation on land."

"The dreadnought strength of the force under Admiral Von Pohl is almost certainly seventeen battleships and probably some battle cruisers. Two light cruisers have gone, but it has been possible to complete ten new vessels, and Admiral Von Pohl, therefore, will have a force under his command stronger than that his predecessor commanded."

CLERK CAMPBELL ASSAILS FIN. COM.

Brain-storm judgments, false, malicious and villainous statements due to vindictiveness, Lady Fancifuls in municipal life, and clairvoyants surrounded by intellectual darkness, are a few of the things charged against the Boston Finance Commission by Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Superior Civil Court, in an official communication sent the City Council today.

The most uncompromisingly severe criticism ever levied at that body by any man holding high office, Mr. Campbell's arraignment of the Finance commission today was given out in reply to a report previously made by the commission relative to the yearly appropriation asked for by him to meet court expenses.

This red-hot attack upon the commission filled eleven closely typed pages, every one of which contained similar criticisms of the "spirit of revenge and vindictiveness" shown by that body.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out. For sale by Hiker-Jaynes and all good druggists.—Advertisement.

ABORNS PLEASE IN 'IL TROVATORE'

"Il Trovatore," one of the old operatic standbys, was given by the Aborns at the Boston Theatre last night and drew a good sized audience, as it most generally does.

Considering the low prices a really good performance of Verdi's gloomy and passionate opera was given. The soprano was Bettina Freeman, who sang minor roles the first season of the Boston Opera Company and who was suffering from an attack of artistic temperament due to the fact that her costumes hadn't come from New York in time. She needn't have worried, for the Aborns were not wasting much thought on the scenic side of Trovatore. They gave it with a former chorus and orchestra and better principals than dollar opera ever gave before and let it go at that.

Miss Freeman sang the music of Leonora with good tone and commendable taste. The tenor was Leonid Samoloff, a Russian, whose voice is very uneven, but who carries himself with all the authority of a big tenor. Mildred Rogers, also a former member of the Boston Opera Company, where she sang small parts, proved very effective as the old Gypsy and sang with very good tone. John Graham, a baritone of considerable ability, sang the Count of Luna. Josef Pasternack conducted.

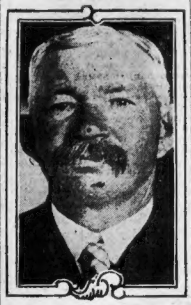
CHIEF OF POLICE PATRICK BUTLER of Weymouth, killed by auto driven by Joseph E. L. Miller, who is held on charge of manslaughter.



Woburn Clerk Quits.

Bernard F. McHugh, Woburn city clerk, has resigned, saying the City Council failed to make adequate financial provisions for his office.

MILLER HELD ON DEATH CHARGE

Joseph E. L. Miller, a wealthy granite contractor of Weymouth, was arraigned today before Judge Avery in the Quincy Court on charges of manslaughter and operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor. The manslaughter complaint alleged that Miller caused the death of Chief of Police Patrick Butler of Weymouth by running him down in Pleasant street last night.

Miller pleaded not guilty to both charges and was held in $6,500 for a hearing April 21. He is manager of the Beam Faced Granite Company of Weymouth. He was represented today by Attorney G. M. Heathcote, representing the A. L. A., and Assistant District Attorney George E. Adams represented the government.

It is said Miller's car had no lights when the accident happened. He was arrested on the scene and spent the night in the Weymouth police station.

Three quarts of whisky were found in Miller's machine at the time of the accident. When neighbors were trying to get the dying chief from under the car Miller was unable to assist them or to even explain what had happened.

Chief Butler had just left his house in Pleasant street when he saw a car approaching, zig-zagging from curb to curb, with no lights and the driver acting somewhat strangely. He stepped from the curb and held up his hand as a signal to stop. Miller probably did not even see him. Just as the machine drew close to the chief, it took one of its sudden tacks and felled him before he could jump clear.

Neighbors ran out and carried Butler back into his house, where his family was finishing supper. He died two hours later. Chief Butler was sixty years old and had served on the Weymouth police force for thirty-five years. He was a director in the South Shore Co-operative Bank and a member of the Weymouth Council, K. of C. He is survived by a widow and eleven children.

Miller has lived in Weymouth many years and is widely known in the granite business. He has carried out several large building contracts, among them the new Congregational Church in Wollaston. He is married and has two children. He lives at No. 907 Washington street, Weymouth.

Mrs. Foster Offers Reward for Chow

Mrs. "Reggie" Foster of No. 48 Fenway offers $25 reward for the return of her blue-tongued dog, a Chow.

Chow's name is "Ching." He—this is a gentleman doggie—disappeared on Sunday, April 4, while having a Sabbath airing in the Back Bay fens.

"Ching" has a red coat, brown eyes and blue tongue, making him a sort of canine kaleidoscope. He is large, as Chow dogs go. He was brought here from China and is descended from a line of Chinese forefathers so long—the line, not the ancestors—that it would be hours passing a given point.

"Ching's" value is roughly set at $300.

Match Head Causes Houlton, Me., Blaze

HOULTON, Me., April 16.—Fire caused by a flying match head damaged the stock and building of the Dunn Furniture Company on Main street. The total loss is estimated by the company officials at $15,000. Roland Hanson, clerk, struck a match to light an alcohol stove. The flaming match head snapped into a pile of excelsior. Hanson was burned on hands and face trying to beat out the flames. The loss is covered by insurance.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dangerous affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very effectious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible between seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Many persons who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.

A Man and His Wife

Isabel and John Have a Row Over Duval

"I am waiting for an explanation, Isabel!"

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

WHEN the effects of alcohol wear off the nerves are left tense and quivering. Even bad matters gone smoothly in the Hamilton household this morning John would have found it difficult to maintain a calm exterior. As it was—with his head aching sickeningly, with something brooding in the atmosphere and a vague suspicion of he knew not what gripping him—he needed to exercise all his self-control to keep silence while Cynthia waited on the table.

It seemed as if the maid had never been so slow. Had never dragged her feet as she did now, had never been so persistent in her attentions.

Perhaps he was right. Cynthia's curiosity was of the kind that feeds on unsavory secrets. The lower the grade of intelligence, the more likely is one to find delight in scandal. Any day Cynthia resembled the buzzard of her native State, keen for a bit of carrion. It would be a joy to her to find such a morsel right here in the home of a woman who had told her that her services would not be needed after the end of the month. So she lingered in the dining room, passing the toast so often that at last Mrs. Hamilton remarked with more force than patience:

"That will do, Cynthia. Go on now and make the beds."

The girl obeyed reluctantly. The door had hardly closed behind her before an ejaculation of exasperation burst from John Hamilton's lips.

"The confounded darkey! I thought she would never get out! Now," pushing back his chair violently, "what's all this about?"

Isabel tried to keep a tremor of something akin to fear from her voice. Her eyes fell on Duval's handkerchief lying on the table by her. She appreciated that her silence about his presence last night had put her in a most uncomfortable position. She had told John nothing, and had gotten into trouble in consequence. Yet John never took her into his confidence with regard to his affairs, and nothing awkward happened, at least nothing that made him feel as much embarrassed and distressed as she now felt. Yet she must say something.

"I am waiting for an explanation, Isabel!"

Her husband's tone was harsh and brusque. Her silence was increasing his suspicions.

SHE TELLS HIM SHE WILL GLADLY EXPLAIN

"I am perfectly willing to explain," she told him. "I said that I dropped that handkerchief last night, but I said it to deceive Cynthia, not you. That is Mr. Duval's handkerchief."

"Duval's!" John exclaimed. "Was he here?"

"You provided me with no escort for the evening," she pleaded.

A ray of understanding penetrated Hamilton's aching brain. "Then Duval brought you home, did he? What was the matter with Ferris? I thought you said he would bring you home. And how did Duval happen to be at the dinner anyway?

"He was invited in your place," Isabel answered the last question first. She wanted to gain time. "And," she went on, "Mr. Ferris did not offer to bring me home, and I could hardly ask him to—could I? Besides, I never told you he would. It was you who said that perhaps he would. He did not suggest it. So I accepted Mr. Duval's escort instead."

She stopped for a moment. Then, with an effort, she made a clean breast of the matter.

"He came for me and brought me back home," she said.

"The devil he did!" John burst forth, flaming darkly. "Then you knew he was coming for you, did you? And you told me that Cynthia was going up with you, and let me believe that Ferris would bring you back! Well," with a sort of rage, "you're a slick one, you are!"

All her fear vanished. Stung by his injustice, she sprang to her feet.

"I told you nothing one way or the other!" she began. But he checked her.

"I found it out all right!" he exclaimed. "I don't care to hear any more!"

"But you shall hear more!" she declared. Going around to where he stood at the end of the table, she confronted him. "You shall listen to what I have to say," she said severely.

Something in her manner silenced him. Perhaps the honest look in her blue eyes made him ashamed of his insinuations. She saw that he was listening.

"I asked you how I was to go to and return from Ida's and you said Cynthia could go with me and Mr. Ferris could bring me home," she explained. "Ida invited Mr. Duval in your place. He wrote that he would call for me in a taxi and take me to dinner. That is the truth of the matter."

He looked at her searchingly. "Liar," he questioned, "how did Mrs. Ferris happen to invite Duval? Was it your suggestion or hers?"

"At first she asked me to tell her of some man I knew," Isabel replied. "I mentioned this fact to you, you know. Later she insisted that I name a man to take your place, and I mentioned Mr. Duval."

"Just as if you and he were intimate friends," he accused. "You did not stop to think that it might cause talk—did you?"

Her eyes flashed. "I stopped to think quite as much as you did the night you made an engagement with Mrs. Simmons!" she retorted.

"With a man such matters are entirely different," he insisted.

"Yes — regarded from a man's viewpoint," she amended, "but not from mine."

HE ACCUSES HER OF WRONGDOING

His wife's taken back for a moment, then recovered his self-possession. "You must have thought that you were doing wrong," he said. "or you would have told me of the arrangement."

"I was not doing wrong, and did not feel that I was," she denied.

"Then why did you not tell me of it?"

A swift recollection of his reply to a similar question from her flashed through her mind.

"Because," she said glibly, "you are always so unreasonable that I am afraid to tell you anything. You once told me something of that kind about myself. So I am sure that you can understand and sympathize with my motives in this matter. You see, John, I have learned a little from association with you, after all."

She smiled guilelessly, and continued to smile until her husband had turned and left the house. Then, because the smile went no deeper than her lips, hot tears rushed to her eyes.

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

Two Old Friends Meet After the Lapse of Years to Revive Memories

SYNOPSIS.

Noel Crawley, a successful painter, has painted the portrait of a beautiful woman whom he knows only as Zoe. She calls at his studio and, on learning of his engagement, tries to kill herself. She goes, swearing she will commit suicide the day he marries.

About this time Godfrey Brooke appears on the scene, after an absence of several years in Africa.

Copyright, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. Serial rights in U. S. A. held by International News Service.

(By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.)

HE only stayed in England about six months, during which time he visited the tombs of his parents and many places, paid his Cambridge debts with interest and renewed as many of his acquaintances as he could.

He went to Paris before starting off on some prospecting expedition into Uganda. It was in Paris, at this time, that he first met Noel Crawley, and the two young men then and there struck up an extraordinary close friendship.

Crawley was at this time a struggling art student, pigging it in great discomfort in the Quartier Latin, a strange young man, utterly unlike an artist in many ways, yet thoroughly in love with his profession, and grimly, if rather hopelessly, determined to wrench fame from the gods by his pencil and brush.

He was three years younger than Brooke, and the two men were about as dissimilar as it is possible to imagine; but for the few weeks Brooke was in Paris they were well-nigh inseparable.

Crawley had very little money of his own at that time save what he made by his art, but he firmly refused Brooke's offer to take him to Uganda, pay all his expenses there and back, show him the grandest scenery, and give him the finest sport in Central Africa.

"If you offered to take me to Italy," Crawley is reported to have said, "I would have pocketed my pride and gone like a shot. But Africa?—no, thank you."

SPOKEN OF AS AN EMPIRE BUILDER

Brooke went abroad shortly afterward and was away for two or three years. The two men corresponded more or less regularly, and Crawley observed that Brooke's name was often in the papers. He was spoken of as an intrepid traveller and sportsman, an empire-builder, and all that sort of thing. Then he came back to England he was thoroughly lionized. A very brilliant young man, whose name has ever since been kept a prominent figure in society, he was the first established Brooke's reputation as a maker of empire.

Noel Crawley was in London at the time, getting on well and making quite a little money. His Academy picture of the year was spoken of everywhere. His forte was portraiture.

The two men saw a great deal of each other, and Crawley basked in the reflected glory of the great man, and from that time dated his career as his ever-growing success to that fact.

Brooke never stayed in England long. He hated London and his spirit would not rest. He travelled everywhere, made many here and lost it there and made more; then he interested himself in African politics and became a really great man. And all the time Crawley slowly but surely crept up the hill of fame, and in the journey did himself uncommonly well.

A little under two years before the commencement of this story Brooke returned to a certain Miss Diana Melhuish, of whom no one had ever heard. The marriage was kept a secret until after the honeymoon, and Brooke had gone away to Africa, leaving his wife behind, with all his love and a check book.

And now Brooke was in England again, feeling very cold and uncomfortable in the chill east wind of March as he huddled back in the taxi which was bearing him from his club in St. James' to Crawley's studio flat in Grosvenor road, facing the river and the monstrous pottery works of Doulton.

He had not seen Noel Crawley for two years, but he had occasionally heard from him, and tonight, at the club, where he had dined with a well known Under Secretary of State, he had learned a lot about him.

Crawley was becoming a very popular artist, and a still more popular man in the semi-smart Bohemian society in which he moved. Brooke was genuinely glad, and wanted to see him and tell him so.

Brooke had only been in England a couple of days, and those days had been very crowded with appointments so crowded, indeed, that he had barely had time to say how-do-you-do to his wife.

The Under Secretary had had to go to the House comparatively early, and Brooke's taxi, train down to Guildford, where his house and wife were, did not go till past 10 o'clock. With the two-mile drive at the end of the railway journey he expected to be in his house before midnight.

BROOKE DECIDES TO LOOK UP CRAWLEY.

He had an hour to spare. A man at the club had suggested billiards; but Brooke decided to look up Crawley.

He dismissed his taxicab and was whisked up to Crawley's flat in a lift. When he had last seen Crawley he had been living very quietly in Camden Town. 40A Grosvenor road, with its smart entrance hall, its liveried hall porter and lift attendant, had an unmistakable air of luxury. He was glad, because Crawley thoroughly deserved it all.

He heard a footstep in the hall and smiled. The door opened. A tall, slim man was silhouetted against the warm orange light behind him.

"Hullo, Crawley," said Brooke. "How do you do?"

"Brooke!" exclaimed Crawley. "How are you? I am glad. Won't you come in?"

"Rather. You don't suppose I'm going to stand out here, do you?" He laughed boisterously. "I thought I'd look you up, old man. Hope you aren't busy. I've only been about half an hour and must be at Waterloo by 10.15. I'm glad to see things have prospered at last. Always told you they would, you know. By Jove, this place looks jolly comfortable." The traveler admiringly surveyed the flat. "Well, I always said you'd do well. But let me have a look at you. Shut I say, Noel, you aren't looking up to much."

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

A lady of intellectual tastes found it difficult to collect all the facts she wished to remember. She, therefore, secured the services of a professor of one of the best memory systems.

Scarcely had the professor taken his departure when a successful explosion known when a loud double knock was heard at the front door.

"Who is it, Sarah, Mary?" the lady inquired of the servant.

"Oh, if you please, ma'am," said Mary, "it was the memory man he forgot his umbrella!"

"Dead!" he exclaimed. "I wasn't dead. And I know I wasn't, because my feet were cold and I was hungry."

"But how did that make you sure?"

"Well, I knew that if I were in Heaven I shouldn't be hungry, and if I was in the other place my feet wouldn't be cold."

Lighthouses for Aviators

In Germany there are specially-built land lighthouses, whose purpose is to guide aircraft. Each is fitted with a powerful searchlight which, at intervals of a minute, throws out a flash of 27,000,000 candle power. These beacons send a powerful ray of light vertically up into the clouds, so that it can be seen by aviators at great altitudes. Such guides are mounted on prominent spots, like the Weimar Kyffhäuser group, the top of Taunus Mount, the Donberris military flying ground, and the Johannisthal aircraft station. Each lighthouse has a certain distinctive flash, so that its geographical position can be recognized by aviators passing overhead.

The German land lighthouses are also fitted with wireless apparatus, which at frequent intervals sends out weather reports which are caught on the "aerials" of passing aircraft. In this way aviators for many miles around can be warned against approaching wind or rain storms, for almost every German military aeroplane carries wireless equipment which enables its pilot to keep in communication with the earth beneath.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

There's a cold creme which is not only a cleanser, but it's all three in one — cream, cleanser and tissue-builder.

If you have wrinkles in your face, neck and hands, and if you're not as young as you would like to be, Mellorated Voosoo will do the work.

For a body developer it is unexcelled. It possesses stimulating and building oils which are massaged into the skin. These produce circulation of the blood to the surface and at the same time feed the tissues by absorption. A full, firm and well-rounded bust is produced in a comparatively short time; and lines and hollows begin to disappear as if by magic.

Mellorated Voosoo is the greatest help a woman can secure in improving her appearance. It gives that refined bloom of youth to the skin by making it strong and healthy.

Don't neglect your looks if you're a woman. Attirement.

Netting Quail in Egypt

How the Birds Are Caught for the Tables of the Rich

This picture shows how quails are caught in nets along the shore of the big inland sea. The first netting occurs when the birds pass to the south in the Autumn and the second in the early Spring, when they pass from their breeding places.

THE nets are spread in the birds' line of flight, and the birds are attracted in various fashions. Sometimes artificial calls are used with great effect, while in certain parts of the Greek Archipelago a far more cruel method is adopted, for the first of the quails to arrive are caught, blinded and set in cages in the sun. They begin to sing, and the vast quail armies that follow are arrested by the song and seek to find whence it comes. Quails travel in male packs and female packs, the males going first.

Pancakes and Harmony---A "Right-O" Story

The Bookkeeper and the Stenographer Discuss the Art of Cooking

By DOROTHY DIX

"DO YOU read in the paper about that New Jersey divorce suit in which a young wife names a German pancake as the co-respondent?" inquired the Bookkeeper.

"All the pancakes that I ever saw, German, allied or neutral, were calculated to turn love's young dream, or any other kind of a dream, into a nightmare," replied the Stenographer. "If I or my husband on pancakes it would be because he had a juicy little insurance policy or I thought that black was becoming to me."

"How little you understand the masculine stomach?" retorted the Bookkeeper. "That's why you women lose out so often in matrimony. Give a man what he likes to feed on and he'll eat out of your hand. Otherwise he will fly the coop. A man may desert his own fireside, but never his own dining table if it groans under the particular dishes that he likes best."

"Huh!" sniffed the Stenographer; "feed the brute!"

"Precisely," agreed the Bookkeeper. "Now in this pathetic case of a home wrecked by a woman's hand we have a man with an insatiable yearn for German pancakes. Guileless and confiding, believing in the innocence and inexperience of his heart, that the making of German pancakes is second nature to a woman, he marries a young creature with every outward attraction, but, alas, one without a pancake soul.

"He sits down hopefully and trustfully to their first meal and takes one mouthful of the alleged pancake. Horrors! Instead of being light and flaky, a poem of flour and eggs, and whatever else pancakes are made of, it is a cold, sticky, flabby concoction quite suitable for soling shoes than for human consumption.

"The inevitable result is utter disillusion on the part of the husband. He sees the grave yawning for him if he eats wife's pancakes, and the years stretching before him full of desolation and without comfort if he eschews pancakes. For of what value, I ask you, is a pancakeless existence? So he deserts wife and returns home to mother and her incomparable pancakes.

"And this man had a heart, as well as a stomach. He was generous and forbearing. He offered to go back to his wife if she would take a three months' course in cooking. She did.

He returned to her, but her pancakes were still below par, and he's gone back to mother and her cooking for good."

"I guess that when you separate a man from his food you've got a genuine case of alienation of the affections," remarked the Stenographer cynically.

"The grounds in the coffee pot have furnished the grounds for divorces before now," replied the Bookkeeper. "As long as you keep a man well fed and comfortable he will purr under your hand. That's why it's such a mystery to me that women don't spend their time learning how to cook instead of trying to learn how to play on the piano. Believe me, canned music goes better in the home than canned fruit."

"You can't picture a blissful ending to a romance as saying, 'and they lived happily ever after out of the delicatessen store,'" admitted the Stenographer.

"Right-o," responded the Bookkeeper.

"A man who loves to eat is delivered, bound and tied, into his wife's hands," said the Stenographer, seductively; "she's always got a way to work him."

"Verrue," replied the Bookkeeper, "but you don't see many girls nowadays that can make pies like mother made."

"And you don't see many young men who can make enough like father made it," retorted the Stenographer.

THE NEW EXPLOITS OF ELAINE.

A patron of the moving picture theatres has written this letter, which here is quite in place:

"You seem to have cornered all the good ideas that are floating around the air and monopolized them for your own."

"Since 'The Exploits of Elaine' started, my wife and I haven't been able to see any other motion picture without forcing a comparison with 'The Exploits of Elaine' and 'Elaine' never suffers!"

This is about the case. With such a cast and such perfect pictures as Pathe Freres have made—after so perfect a story as only Arthur B. Reeve can tell, the greatest feature motion pictures and story had to be created. The stories appear each Sunday in the

GERMANY BEHIND BETHLEHEM RISE

NEW YORK, April 16.—Germany is behind the sensational rise in the price of Bethlehem Steel and caused it by trying to gain control of the Schwab corporation in order to prevent the allies, particularly England, from getting war supplies. This is the latest amazing explanation of the advance in the price of Bethlehem Steel common from below 50 to 155 in a few days.

According to this explanation, which is by a man who is as well known in financial districts in this country as any man alive, and who is almost as well known in London as in Boston or New York, war has been waged on Wall Street within a fortnight, as well as in Europe, and the fight for the control of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is a dollar campaign by Germany against the allies.

The financier who makes this statement was asked by cable what was behind the extraordinary stock market movement of Bethlehem Steel. He replied by cable, "Absolutely impossible to say anything for publication." On the heels of this message came a dispatch from one of his closest business associates—the man through whom the query had been transmitted.

"A close intimate of his—one who has probably made more money marketwise than any other on the rise in Bethlehem—had a secret contract with Germany to buy and sell all embargoed ships when the United States Government, that is Congress, shut down on the deal.

"He then, being clothed with the highest authority, was commissioned to formulate and execute plans to secure control of Bethlehem for PURPOSE OF BREAKING WAR CONTRACTS.

"His first move was to put himself beyond investigation by American authorities. He has not been visible in America since August, except from December 1 to December 14.

"He has carte blanche, working with the highest authorities in carrying out the plan, which is for new control of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. If he gets control, he will shut down war order work at the Bethlehem plants, paying all contract damages in money and tying up all sub-let contracts.

"He will try to close exportation of breadstuffs and everything else contracted for by throwing the whole affair into courts and then by international publicity making it impossible for the Government or the courts to untangle the matter.

"This is the sensation which has been on the horizon for days. The fireworks in Bethlehem Steel began when the agents of the allies got suspicious. Then began a frantic stock market fight for the control of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation."

Inventory Shows Zimmerman Fortune Worth Only $800,000

CINCINNATI, April 16.—The inventory of the personal estate of Eugene Zimmerman, father-in-law of the Duke of Manchester, filed by the appraisers, is valued at only $800,000. At the time of his death Mr. Zimmerman was believed to be worth millions, but the appraisers found the bulk of his stocks and bonds to be practically worthless.

The case bears a remarkable parallel to that of the late Calvin S. Brice, United States Senator from this state. Mr. Brice's fortune was estimated in the millions, but in appraisal shrank to less than $700,000.

Mund figures it amounts to $17.55 now. Mund has written from Kansas City that he wants to file suit for the money and asking the costs in Chicago's cutrate court. He says he will be in Chicago to begin suit tomorrow.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Advertisement.

WINSLOW HITS AT 'BRYAN INTRIGUE'

WORCESTER, April 16—Speaking before the Worcester County Republican Club, Congressman Winslow criticized the work of Secretary of State Bryan with reference to appointments in Washington, asserting that Mr. Bryan is trying to build up a form of Bryanism which the Republican party will probably be forced to face.

He said that in Washington Bryanism prevails, and characterised Mr. Bryan as a "political intriguer."

REPORT JAP FLEET BEST IN PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, April 16—It was declared here today that the establishment of a strong Japanese force on the west coast of Mexico has been long known to the United States officials, who are said to have regarded it as but temporary, pending the floating of the grounded first class cruiser Asama, which a Los Angeles reporter, who visited Turtle Bay, said could be floated in a few hours.

The presence of the Japanese in great strength is said to have been known to administration officials ever since Rear Admiral Thomas H. Howard, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, went to the aid of the Asama.

The administration is said to have known also that the Japanese force was far superior in fighting strength to the American fleet in the Pacific. Although Secretary Daniels has declared he would ask Rear Admiral Howard to investigate the report of the establishment of a Japanese navy base at Turtle Bay, this report is said to have already been made and suppressed "for reasons of policy."

The statement has been made that the "mines" Albert P. Nathan, the Los Angeles reporter, who made the sensational investigation, saw were "probably buoys." Nathan today makes a further statement in support of his charges.

He says he was accompanied by Hubert M. Kittle, recently honorably discharged from the United States navy as first machinist's mate on the U. S. S. West Virginia. In a Los Angeles dispatch Nathan quotes Kittle as authorising him to say emphatically that the objects in the water were mines, not buoys.

"I think I know a mine when I see one," said Kittle, "and they were mines and nothing else. If they were not mines why was Lieutenant Tomosada of the Iawoe so solicitous of our welfare in telling us to keep away from them when we went out?"

Nathan adds: "As a result of my stories of conditions in Turtle Bay, Ira E. Blackman of Los Angeles, general manager of the Magdalena Bay Company, lessees of all of the land embraced in the Turtle Bay district, has asked the State Department to make an investigation and if the Japanese had landed there as I say they have he wants them put off the company's land

MILITIA AIDS CAPTURE OF MAN ACCUSED BY AUGUSTA, ME., GIRL

The human quarry was about 500 feet ahead.

The deputy yelled to him. Private Bryant, who is one of the crack shots of Company B, whipped his rifle to his shoulder, drew a bead upon Kittredge and all but pressed the trigger.

SKIRED BY SOLDIER.

Kittredge looked back fearfully over his shoulder. He saw Bryant's good rifle, Bryant's reputation as a rifle shot extends throughout the state. It was a perfect shot and Kittredge knew it.

Kittredge stopped. The two pursuers ran toward him. As they came up Kittredge called to them:

"You've got me."

He made no effort at resistance as the deputy and the militiaman grabbed him, none too gently, and hustled him back through the woods nearly two miles, to the nearest roadway.

At the highway an automobile was used, from the many employed in conveying searchers, to speed Kittredge to the city jail on Conery street. News of the capture spread gradually through the long line of searchers. A. Mulry to the presidency of Fordham.

And when Bryant and Glidden brought their man out from the woods to the road, a crowd of searchers was at hand surveying the fugitive with anger at the dead charged against him, but with intense satisfaction at his capture.

GUARD PRISONER.

The police hoped to get their man into the jail before the news of the capture became known in the city proper, but some of the searchers evidently telephoned the word ahead from farmhouses or outlying stores, because a crowd of nearly a thousand was massed about the entrance to the police station when the prisoner was whirled up Conery street in the automobile.

A strong police guard was drawn up outside the station, however, and no violence was attempted, although many mutterings were heard. Kittredge was put in a cell without delay.

Doris Brown had been in the woods since school let out yesterday afternoon. So exhausted was she by her terrible experience that but disconnected bits of her story could be learned.

She had been in the woods since school let out yesterday afternoon. So exhausted was she by her terrible experience that but disconnected bits of her story could be learned.

The searchers were surprised to come on the girl trying to find her way home. They hurried her to the home of her father, A. E. Brown, of No. 1 Green street. She said she had fought the man all night long, in constant terror that he would get the better of her. Her father believed that she had been successful.

When school let out yesterday afternoon, Doris, a girl of twelve, rather large for her age, was returning home with three other girls of about the same age. They stopped to look toward the woods where smoke was coming from a fire started by boys.

DORIS TELLS STORY.

While they were talking about this fire, the girls say, Kittredge came up, asking if they did not want to go into the woods and look at the fire. The Hannon and Murphy girls ran away, telling Doris Brown and the Weisner girl they had better not go.

Doris and her playmate, however, went along. They had proceeded but a short way into the woods, however, before the Weisner girl became frightened and ran away screaming. Doris says Kittredge grabbed her, keeping her from running off, too.

The Weisner girl, almost speechless with terror, stumbled up the steps of the home of John McLean, in Mt. Vernon avenue, the house nearest the woods, and told of her playmate's peril.

MILITIA JOINS SEARCH.

After the McLeans had questioned the girl, Mrs. McLean notified the police, while her husband went out and gathered some of the neighbors. The people snatched up the best weapon that came to hand. In half an hour there were fifty men, together with a detail of ten policemen under City Marshal Harward, beating through the woods where the Weisner girl said she had left Kittredge with little Doris Brown.

As the news spread, more people joined the hunt. Doris' father, although only a few days ago begged the sheriff not to put out the posse before a search of the woods, was in the forefront of the searchers. He begged for the chance to get that fiendish fiend.

When reports from the searchers coming in during the early evening announced that no trace of the man for all had been found, friends of Mr. Brown appealed to the Governor, obtaining his consent to the use of the militia.

SOUND FIFE AGAIN.

At about 8:30 last night the fife-and-drum sound, rolling real so seldom heard in Augusta that at first only militiamen knew what it meant. When people realized just what the strange fife sounds really meant, the entire city hummed with excitement.

As M company of the Second regiment, in nearly full enlisted strength, left their armory, carrying rifles and several rounds of ammunition, they were accompanied by a great number of citizens.

With the arrival of this new addition to the posse, they were split up into details by City Marshal Harward, and the militiamen were assigned to various sections. This sprinkling of militiamen through the ranks of the citizen searchers was a wise precaution taken by the marshal to ease the fury of the mob broke loose when the man should be captured.

The great force of men and soldiers was thrown about the patch of woods in which it was believed the fugitive was hiding.

But little advance was made during the night because the searchers feared to overlook a possible hiding place. But slowly as the cordon did contract, it kept driving the fugitive deeper into the woods.

When the girl's parents appeared, bedraggled, her hair down, her clothes torn, and the nails on her fingers broken, sadly able to drag herself along, the news spread along the line.

FUGITIVE ESCAPES.

This caused a rush toward that corner of the woods where the girl was, in spite of the efforts of the police and the militiamen to keep the cordon intact. By this action the line opened enough to give the fugitive a chance to get past.

The direction pointed out by the exhausted child, however, set the hunters right again, and at 5 o'clock this morning someone caught a glimpse of the fugitive in the Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

New lines were formed about the cemetery. As they closed in, however, the fugitive managed to slip past somehow, and was just glimpsed as he dodged into cover in the edge of the woods.

MAXINE ELLIOTT'S LETTERS TELL OF HORRORS OF THE WAR

Miss Maxine Elliott, the actress, returning from her relief barge in France and Belgium to a woman friend in England, describes scenes of horror among the war refugees. Some of her letters follow:

American Commission for Relief in Belgium, Barge Julia Grace Dearest.

Poor Gertrude (Lady Forbes-Robertson, Miss Elliott's sister) and Miss Leggett have acknowledged about a thousand letters and contributions the first week that my one letter appeared in London. I wrote to "my own country women," but only British people responded and I got a little over £100 in cash, and between Queen [illegible] worth of stuff for the barge, and the letter appeared only last Friday.

CLOTHES REFUGEES.

I cannot describe to you the pitiful condition of these poor refugees. Only today we have clothed twelve families from top to toe from ten to fourteen people in each family. It is impossible to find shelter for them all and they are stuffed like sardines in barns, even in the pigsties and hen houses—any place that has a roof.

I have still not been able to find any shelter for my ambulance within a radius of ten miles, and here it stands when not in motion, axle deep in mud and dripping with rain. I am hoping to receive a tent from England to give it some protection soon, for I am in constant dread of its collapsing, and one is helpless without a motor. I stuff it full daily with food and clothing and make the pitiful rounds of as many cases as we can. In a house close by eighty soldiers sleep on the ground floor, and in a tiny room adjoining are fragments of several families—fifteen people in all. Two of the children are down with typhus, one on the floor and one in an old biscuit box.

There is not enough room for the army, and as many civilians as possible are sent away continually, but still they come on, shelled out of their homes and buffeted about from one wretched place to another.

I have arranged with a bakery close by to bake several hundred loaves of bread a day, and yesterday a bomb dropped in front of the door killing a man and three soldiers. It tore a hole through one corner of the roof and broke every pane of glass in the bakery and all the yeast and bread for the day had to be thrown away, as it was full of glass splinters. Several other bombs were thrown a little further on, killing eight people in all. It seems such a senseless sort of warfare, for none but little children and harmless civilians are the sufferers.

Your utterly devoted,

American Commission for Relief in Belgium, Barge Julia Gracie Dearest.

Your sweet little letter has just turned up as I am preparing for a little expedition to Dunkirk with Lady Sarah Wilson, and I may have a chance to get this letter through by the British Consul there, so I'll scribble for a moment now just to get a word to you when I can.

HORROR EVERYWHERE.

Sarah brought me a ton more of provisions, and I have now at least 10,000 pounds worth of stuff—food, clothing and shoes.

What horror, horror, everywhere the glorious thing called war brings in its train. We see nothing but sad sights, and yet the people themselves are not sad—it is surprising what the poor can live through. There is a family of five living in a hand cart close by and have been there for five months.

They have roofed the top over with sacking and a strip of canvas and there they stuck themselves away and the soldiers feed them.

Lady Sarah is still with me. Her husband was killed in Ypres, you remember, close by here. Kathleen comes again soon, I hope. I need her. It is such hard physical work, and she is very capable that way. The Duke of Westminster writes that he is coming up to see me tomorrow. He is in the neighborhood with a lot of armored cars, I [illegible] after all, Belgium Relief [illegible] British Consul, Dunkirk is the best address.

Your utterly devoted,

100,000 IDLE IN CHICAGO STRIKE

CHICAGO, April 16.—Fifteen thousand union carpenters here, anticipating a lockout which would become effective today, have gone on a strike. More than 100,000 men in the various building trades are idle as a result. The strike, ordered by union officials, followed a demand for an increase in wages from 65 to 70 cents an hour.

The lockout order was the result of a general order of the Building Construction Employers' Association, directed at every union in the building trades which might permit its working agreement to expire. After the strike was declared the employers made public a special notice which said none of the men who struck will be permitted to return to work. The strike of the carpenters will halt all building construction in Chicago, it was said.

MAN DROPS HEART SUIT AGAINST GIRL

Joseph Mrinewitz has dropped his breach of promise suit against Miss Franciska Kasibucka, a pretty Polish girl, which was entered in both the Municipal Civil and Suffolk Superior Courts last November. It is said he objected to the notoriety of a public trial.

Mr. Mrinewitz, through his attorney, had attached $300 belonging to Miss Kasibucka, on deposit in the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, and also $150 belonging to her which he said was in the possession of the Polish Industrial Association.

The girl's defence was a general denial, Miss Kasibucka claiming she only knew Mrinewitz slightly and did not consider herself engaged to him.

When Your Fiftieth Birthday Comes will you have the sound heart, steady nerves and good digestion of your younger days?

Many men and women reach the prime of life, burdened with stomach trouble, headaches, constipation, nervousness, heart flutter, etc., and frequently the cause is the drug, caffeine, in the coffee they drink.

You can quickly tell if coffee is injuring your health by stopping it ten days and using

Instant Postum

This delicious, pure food-drink contains no caffeine nor any other harmful ingredient. It is wholesome and invigorating, with a snappy flavour very like that of the Old Gov't Javas.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup and add hot water—that's all.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form, which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavour is equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

Why Two Hods?

Crawford Ranges

have an Ash Hod with a coal range beside it (patented). The Ash Hod is deep and catches all of the ashes. It is easy to remove and carry and doesn't spill. Both hods free. The old, clumsy ash pan is hard to remove and strews ashes over floor and stairs.

The wonderful "Single Damper" (patented) makes perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it?

Gas ovens if desired; end (single) or elevated (double).

MRS. ERHARDT LOSES JARGOON

You didn't meet up with a jargoon on your way to work today, did you? Mrs. Justus Erhardt has lost her jargoon and advertises $25 reward for it.

Mrs. Erhardt is the wife of Professor Erhardt of Tech. Early this week the Erhardts moved from Malboro street, Back Bay, to No. 50 Ivy street, Brookline. It is thought the jargoon went astray in the moving.

It is comparatively easy to lose a jargoon unless you put it right back in its place every time, but so far as known this is the first time one has been lost in Boston and a reward offered for its return. Meanwhile the Erhardts are doing housekeeping as best they can without the jargoon.

Most people wouldn't know a jargoon if they saw it face to face. But the advertisement explains that this lost one is set in the centre of a brooch of sapphires and rubies. So a jargoon is some kind of jewelry at least.

Webster's Dictionary mentions "jargoon" in its footnotes and refers one to the fourth definition of "jargon," which is defined thus:

"SIRCON—Min., Zirconium orthosilicate, a tetragonal mineral occurring usually in square prisms or pyramids of adamantine lustre and brown or grayish color. Specific gravity 4.7. Transparent varieties are used as gems, especially the red or brownish varities. Colorless, pale yellow or smoky varities from Ceylon are called 'jargon.'" Hence

Mrs. Erhardt's jargoon is a yellow gem from Ceylon.

Here's a "Style Show" Well Worth Seeing

Nowhere else in New England will you find such a wide variety of correct styles for men as at this Live Store. We are unique in that we offer such a diversified line—such a wide range for choice—such an unlimited opportunity for the exercise of individual preference.

No one mind could possibly conceive, nor could any one manufacturer produce, all the variations in styles and models that we show and that we find necessary in catering to such a large and cosmopolitan patronage as ours.

Here we assemble in great quantities the best ideas of the foremost designers and the best productions of the most worthy makers, and the values we offer are no less remarkable than the size and variety of the stock.

Nor is multiplicity of correct ideas the only advantage that accrues from our "free-lance" buying. For since we are not tied up to any one maker, nor restricted to the product of a factory of our own, no manufacturer's mistakes nor unsaleable left-overs are ever included in our stock. Only the cream of the world's finest merchandise finds it way to our crystal-glass cases.

FRIDAY

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened higher on the average and the tone improved within a few minutes. Trading continued on a large scale. The feature of the first half hour was the sensational rise of American Locomotive. It closed yesterday at 43¾, and within a few minutes this morning rose to 62. It declined almost as rapidly to 57 and then rose to 59. It is understood it has been awarded a contract by the Russian government for war munitions that totals several million dollars.

Taking the New York market as a whole early fluctuations had the greatest range within a long period. There was intense excitement on the exchange. Among issues to move within a wid range were N. Y. Air Brake, Westinghouse, Railway Steel Spring, New Haven, Reading, American Can and Bethlehem Steel.

GAINS AND LOSSES.

Among gains in New York were American Telephone 1¾, New Haven 1¼, American Can 2, American Locomotive 7½, American Can and Foundry 1¼, Bethlehem Steel 4, Mexican Petroleum 1⅝, Westinghouse 2⅝ and National Lead 1⅜. U. S. Steel was up ⅛, Union Pacific ¼, Reading ⅛, Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting ⅜, Utah Copper ⅛, Maxwell Motor ⅛ and Canadian Pacific ⅝. U. S. Rubber was off ¼. Almost every active issue was showing a gain. American stocks were strong in London.

Boston gains included Allouez 1¼, Butte & Superior ½, Calumet & Arizona 1, Calumet & Hecla 3, it selling at 590; Copper Range ⅝, Isle Royale ⅜, North Butte ¼, New Haven 2 and American Zinc 1.

PROSPECTS GOOD HERE.

In regard to the situation and outlook in this section, the First National Bank of Boston says in its April letter: "The improvement in business sentiment in New England during the past month has been very noticeable. The continued slight improvement in general trade, coupled with easy money conditions, has given great encouragement to the average business man. A decrease in unemployment, a slightly larger output of goods, and an upward trend in prices, seem to point the way toward more normal and profitable business. Apparently the belief is gaining ground that from a trade standpoint, the United States, with its great resources and neutral position, will benefit industrially whether the war be of long or short duration."

BIG SALES OF COPPER.

The demand for copper metal seems to the steadily increasing. One of the largest sellers says at least 75 per cent. of it is from ammunition makers, indicating how great an effect war is having upon the price and consumption of this product. It is said that Calumet & Hecla has sold 1,000,000 pounds of Lake at 19 cents a pound. Some producers are now asking 17½ cents for electrolytic. It is reported 1,000,000 pounds were sold late yesterday at 17. It is estimated in some quarters that sales of copper this week will total 100,000,000 pounds. Spelter is rising too. Buyers are bidding 10¾ cents East St. Louis for April delivery, but it is said none can be obtained for this month under 10¾. The price ranges from that figure to 10¾.

RAISES MINERS' PAY.

The Calumet & Hecla Mining Company has raised the pay of its employes 10 per cent. This affects all its properties, mills and smelters and those of eleven subsidiary corporations, including Ahmeek, Allouez, Centennial, Osceola, Consolidated, Isle Royale, White Pine, La Salle, Tamarack, St. Louis, Laurium and others. About 9,000 men are affected. The wage increase will go into effect on May 1.

Miss Revere to Hang Lantern To Officiate at North Church

Miss Pauline Revere, only living descendant of Paul Revere, who will hang lantern in Old North Church Sunday night.

Sunday night, Pauline Revere, the great-great-granddaughter of Paul Revere, will observe the 140th anniversary of her historic ancestor's famous ride by hanging a signal lantern in the bell tower of the old North Church, according to a statement made today by the Rev. W. H. Dewart, rector of the old church.

For many years it has been the custom to hang a lantern in the North Church belfry on the night of April 18, and whenever it has been possible, some descendant of Paul Revere's has been selected for the observance.

S. VORENBERG CO. HAS SMOKE LOSS

The S. Vorenberg Company clothing store, Washington, Hanover and Elm streets, suffered a smoke and water damage, when fire was discovered on the fourth floor of the building in an unoccupied room. For nearly an hour firemen fought the flames, which were not put out until large quantities of water had been poured into the building.

The storerooms of the S. Vorenberg Company on the third floor, directly below the fire, were damaged by water and smoke, which also penetrated the two selling floors, the second and the street. It is believed thousands of dollars worth of new spring furnishings and clothing for men, women and children were damaged, the extent of which cannot yet be estimated by members of the firm. The damage to the building is estimated by the police at fully $1,500.

The Vorenberg Company store will be closed today and will not be opened until fire insurance adjusters and the firm have appraised the damage. The building is owned by the Henry estate.

B. & M. BILL UP TO R. R. COMMITTEE

The Boston & Maine "compromise" bill, discussed in public hearings, will be taken up by the Committee on Railroads in executive session today with prospects of an immediate report.

The various factions, who have hitherto held up legislation, seemed in accord in the public hearing. The provision for refunding and the inclusion of the Hampden road, were the two principal points on which there is still a division.

The Public Service Commission, in a statement sent to the hearing, maintain that the bill should either make it clear that stock or bonds, issued to cover expenditures ordinarily charged to income, must be ultimately retired out of the income, or else make it clear that the commission shall have the right to inquire into the nature and origin of the debt in fixing the basis for just and reasonable rates for the company.

In New Hampshire the House killed the Boston & Maine bill, which was reported by a minority of the Judiciary Committee. A new bill is expected to be submitted Tuesday by the Judiciary Committee. The provisions of this new reorganization plan were made public today.

By its terms the Boston & Maine is to have the right to issue stocks and bonds, to mortgage any or all of its property and franchises, to pledge or sell its assets, to reduce or increase its capital stock, to assess its stockholders by any method, to reorganize itself if necessary for these purposes, to pay or fund its existing floating indebtedness and to improve its property.

Douglas Sees Boom.

BROCKTON, April 16.—Returning from an extended trip through the South, ex-Governor William L. Douglas declares:

"This country is going to see, succeeding the close of the war in Europe, the greatest prosperity in its history, a tremendous development of business. The only worry is that our prosperity will be so great that it will incur the enmity of one or more of the small countries now at war, or that they may try to quarrel with us.

REPORT FRICK HAS MORGAN ART GEMS

NEW YORK, April 16.—Duveen Brothers announce the purchase by them of the Eighteenth Century furnishings in the J. P. Morgan collection in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. They are in two galleries, one of which has been known as the British room, designed especially for its present contents, to resemble in form, size, panellings and decorations a drawing room in an English manson of about 1730. The companion gallery is known as the Marie Antoinette room.

Best estimates of dealers run form $1,000,000 upward. As to the probable private buyers, all guesses turn to Henry C. Frick of Pittsburgh and Pride's Crossing, Mass.

A Foe to Tuberculosis
The Journal of the American Medical Association, in its issue of August 9, 1913, reviewing an article on "The Influence of Calcium Salts on Constitution and Health," said:
"They (the authors) report numbers of concrete instances in which patients gained in vitality and energy after taking calcium."
Doctors seem to agree that in tuberculosis and chronic throat and bronchial affections lowered vitality and lost energy are conditions that must be overcome.
One of the constituents of Eckman's Alterative is calcium (lime), so combined with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. To this, in part, is due its widespread success in the treatment of lingering and disastrous troubles.
By preventing, as well as arresting, the ravages of the tubercle bacilli, Eckman's Alterative performs a service which even some physicians have acknowledged to their patients. We do not make wholesale claims for it, but our knowledge of what it has done warrants the statement that IT CAN HELP.
It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, hence a trial is safe. Should your druggist be out of it, you can order through him or direct from the makers.

"The Rabbit's Column" By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Johnny McGraw has again proved that he is one of the greatest baseball managers in the big leagues. There were many one followers of the grand old national pastime who asserted last Fall that the Giants would not be in the running for the championship this year. With the pennant race only a few days old, McGraw is on a position to laugh at the wise men who did not consider his team seriously for the 1914 flag honors. His hand is playing a rattling baseball and won its first two battles easily. The Giants have been greatly strengthened by the addition of Jeff Tesreau, who is playing third base and Pitcher Polly Perritt.

The work of Rube Marquard in yesterday's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers gave the Giants' pennant hopes a big boost. Marquard was in marvelous form and did not allow a single hit. No hit games are very often seen in baseball as a wonderful feat when a hurler can get away with the hardest clouts to dispose of

Endorsed-of Quality Fisherd-of Peace

We receive letters almost every day saying "Now we can seal a full gallon of straight Kentucky whiskey for $2.50 when the price for the same quality has always been $3.00 to $4.00 per gallon."

The Answer There's no secret about it. We just this way: We cut in tremendous quantities and save some on the price there, but the Big Reason is this:

We divide profits with our customers

You fellows that have been paying $3.00 a gallon for Whiskey won't believe you can get the same quality for $2.50 until you've tried it. Human nature. So we've got to get it to you in a big way.

Try It at Our Expense

Just send us $2.50 and we'll send you a gallon of Richardson's Special Whiskey. Take one, two or three drinks, and if you are not entirely satisfied, if you don't say it's the best $2.50 whiskey you ever tasted, you can get your money back.

DIDIER ENTERS BIG BIKE RACE

Leon Didier, the French champion pace follower, will be the third man in the opening race at the Revere Cycle Track on Patriots' Day afternoon, replacing Clarence Carman, the present American title holder. Didier will meet George Wiley and Victor Linart in a twenty-five mile race.

The new card as arranged by Manager Butler is one of the biggest and best that could be arranged, and one that promises to bring out all the speed that is in the three big rivals.

The keenest rivalry exists between the little American pace follower and the speedy Frenchman, as was shown last year, and as Linart, the Belgian, and claimant of about all the records of speed, declares he will not lose a race this year, some red-hot riding is sure to glow.

All three men are working out daily at the track, and in their practice work have shown great speed and strength for so early in the season.

A record number of entries have been received for the amateur races, which will also prove a feature. The distance will be one-half mile, but this novelty is sure to prove a thriller.

The regular amateur and "pro" races will complete the card.

WILLARD'S LIFE STORY

Received $35 for His First Fight

AS TOLD BY HIMSELF

By ED W. SMITH.

Well Known Fight Referee and Ring Expert.

Herewith is presented the fourth instalment of Jess Willard's story of his own life, "How I Won the Championship." The first instalment appeared in the AMERICAN of Tuesday, April 13.

His story covers the Kansas Giant's private and ring life completely from his birth up to and including the now famous Havana battle.

HOW I WON THE TITLE—NO. 4.

My first ring opponent was a young fellow named Louis Fink, and the battle was decided in a ring at Sapulpa, Okla., February 15, 1911. I lost it on a foul in the tenth round.

As I already have told you, I was so nervous that they had difficulty in putting my gloves on, and the big crowd present did not increase my confidence at the start. But we had not been going long before I discovered that Fink wasn't able to hurt me in the least, while my blows seemed to be telling on him.

That gave me more assurance, and I was sailing along pretty good by the time the middle of the fight was reached. I did not know it at the time, but I soon discovered that they didn't want me to win.

Roar Follows Defeat In His First Fight.

In fact, certain parties were keen for me being defeated, and about the only way that it could be accomplished was for the referee to declare me the loser on a foul. He waited until the tenth round before he had nerve enough to say that he had an excuse for this, and then he stopped the battle and gave it to Fink on a foul.

I don't know what the foul was. As a matter of fact, there was not any, but he said there was, and I had to stand for it.

There was a popular roar about my getting the worst of it in that battle, and we were matched that same night, the fight to take place five weeks later.

Fink was frightened to death at the beating I gave him in that first battle and proved an easy victim in the second, taking the full count in the third round. I managed to connect with that old round arm right-hand punch full on his chin, and he crumpled into a heap.

As I remember it, I got about $25 for my first fight and nearly as much for the second, and as I was completely broke at the time, I did not complain any.

I still thought that some day that I would be champion, and I was willing to wait until my chance came.

As my expenses were being paid around Oklahoma, I was able to give all of my earnings to my family, and this kept all of us going. My wife did not like the idea of my fighting and was urging me all the time to quit the game, but the fever was in my blood and I could no more have passed it up than I could have manufactured a watch.

Before I got Fink the second time, they slipped a tough one named Ed Burke in on me, and I put him under with a clean knockout in three rounds.

Four Knockouts After Second Go With Fink.

Three weeks after the second fight with Fink they got me matched with Al Marden, and he fell in four rounds. Two weeks later Joe Cabanaugh fought me in the same ring in Oklahoma City, and he did a little better, managing to stick through until the eleventh round before I got him on the chin with a hard one that put him out for a full hour.

Bill Schiller flopped in four rounds, and then I went over to Elk City, Oklahoma, to battle Frank Lyon. He proved a little tougher than the average run of fighters they had in that section, and I had to work hard to get the decision at the end of ten rounds.

That was on July 4, 1911, and two weeks later I also scored a victory over Mike Comiskey, at Hammond, Okla., also in ten rounds.

Arrested in Oklahoma for Prize Fighting.

That I was able to beat all comers in the convincing manner enabled me to get a tremendous reputation around Oklahoma, and they figured me as still raw, but almost unbeatable.

It is true that I was chased out of Oklahoma. They arrested me on the charge of prize fighting, and I was placed under bonds of $500. D. Brock, who had helped me a whole lot in my fighting career, was arrested with me, and after we got out I decided that the best thing I could do was to jump the bond.

This I did, going to St. Louis, where I first met Charley Cutler, the Chicago wrestler. He advised me to journey to Chicago, which I did. There my real trouble, as well as my real career, really started.

GALLANT SIGNS FOR WELSH GO

By JACK CONWAY.

GILBERT GALLANT will not battle Johnny Lore in Montreal tonight. The Chelsea youth injured his left arm while preparing for his tussle with the New Yorker, and Alex McLean, his manager, immediately called off the Chelsea boy's engagement in the Canadian city.

Gallant's injury is not of a serious nature. McLean, however, does not wish to take any chances of having his protege put his left arm out of commission, as he has him signed to exchange blows with Freddy Welsh, the lightweight champion, in a twelve-round skirmish, which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. on April 27.

THERE is not any doubt about the Jess Willard exhibition at the Boston Arena next Monday night taking place. The writer today saw the articles of agreement between the Willard syndicate and the local promoters. The papers were signed properly and there is not the least hitch in the coming show. Benny Leibuss, who has charge of Monday's show, expects a record crowd to turn out to give the new heavyweight champion the "once over." Benny is entrenched at No. 34 School street, Room 4, where reservations may be made for Willard's exhibition. Benny is on the job each day from 9 a. m. till 7:30 p. m.

IT will be interesting to watch the meeting between Willard and John L. Sullivan, the most popular champion in the history of the ring. The famous old warrior has consented to introduce Willard.

A large number of women have asked whether they would be able to attend the show, and it has been decided to reserve a special section for them.

THE preliminary card for next Tuesday evening's program at the Atlas A. A., where Battling Levinsky and Gunboat Smith clash in the feature bout, will consist of a six-round bout between Jimmy Flynn of Everett and Joe Trainor of Somerville; a six-round match between Howard McRae of Cambridge and Jimmy Gray of New York. The eight-round semi-final match will be arranged today.

THIS will be the second appearance of Levinsky in Boston. He came to this city nearly four years ago, when he was boxing under the name of Barney Williams, and gave Leo Houck an busy an evening as the Lancaster middleweight ever experienced. Levinsky came here on that occasion as a substitute on short notice, jumping off the train and getting into a taxicab which took him to the club where Houck was waiting in the ring.

Big Ten-Vote Coupon and Candidates' Pictures Sunday

Did you ever stop to consider how "every little bit added to what you got makes just a little bit more"?

We are talking about votes—votes that will count in the American's famous California Tours Contest.

When you look ahead to July 3d, when the contest officially comes to an end, it seems a long way off. But when you stop and think how quickly series "A" went by and remember that the remaining six series will slide just as quickly, you begin to realize that before you know it this contest will be approaching its end.

In the meantime, bend all your efforts toward gathering as many votes as you can NOW.

You will find that every vote you get will act as a sort of magnet for the other votes. It's just like saving the pennies—you know the old saying—that the dollars will take care of themselves after that.

It is pleasing news to hear that so many of those enrolled are securing the aid of their friends and acquaintances. This is just as we predicted, because everyone has a certain pride in his or her work and if not in the race personally, would prefer to see a friend or fellow worker carry off one of the big prizes.

We received an odd letter from a contestant the other day, asking why the American gave gold coin in addition to the De Luxe trips to the California fairs and return.

The answer is that the American wanted to make this contest just as interesting as possible and took this means to contest just as interesting as possible and took this means to do it—not that any winning candidate will need this extra spending money on the tour, because every cent of necessary expense will be borne by this newspaper.

Everyone knows the reputation of the American for doing big things in a big way—and one thing is absolutely certain—the winning candidates in this splendid competition will have the time of their lives if money and thoughtfulness will procure it.

There is another feature which has excited a lot of favorable comment and that is the planning of this three-weeks trip in the Summer when people are accustomed to taking a vacation.

The twenty-five winners will surely be able to make arrangements to take their vacations during the time called for by the trips and thus they will "kill two birds with one stone." They will not feel that they are taking time they cannot afford to spare and they will remove from their minds all worry while they're gone.

The meals on the train, the sleeping berths, the Pullman accommodations, the luncheons, dinners and suppers at the big hotels, the side trips in automobiles and carriages to see points of interest at various spots along the route—all these need have no terrors for you on account of expense—the American pays for everything and only asks that you enjoy yourself as its guest while you are gone.

Surely such tours ought to be a large incentive to the effort required now in the gathering of the all-important vote coupons.

The race is not always to the swift. It is the sure and steady daily effort that will tell before this competition closes.

Tomorrow's American will contain the complete, detailed itinerary of the tour. It will show in detail just where you will go and what you will see and how long you will be at each place. If anything were necessary to stimulate your vote gathering activity—the publication of this splendid itinerary will do it, because such a tour may never come again in your lifetime and is well worthy of the slight effort that is required of you now.

IMPORTANT: You have until 5 o'clock P. M. tomorrow, Saturday, April 17, in which to get your series "A" coupons into the office of the Contest Manager at No. 5 Winthrop Square.

If sent by mail they must be sent before 5 P. M. tomorrow.

No series "A" coupons will be counted that are brought in or mailed after that day and hour.

Several candidates have neglected to prepay the full postage in sending their series "A" coupons. It is most important that all vote coupons sent in should have the full amount of postal charges prepaid, as the Contest Manager will refuse to credit any which are not.

The day after tomorrow, in Sunday's American, you will have another opportunity to pile up a big vote total with the aid of the big 10-vote coupon which will appear in the Sunday American.

This is only Friday and the Contest Manager's best advice is to devote every minute of your spare time from now until bedtime tomorrow night in getting in touch with your friends, relatives and even acquaintances anywhere and everywhere, and ask them to be SURE to buy next Sunday's American and gather as many as possible of the big 10-vote coupons which will appear in that issue.

Get ready for next Sunday and the big 10-vote coupons.

Stagnant Blood Given A Quick Impulse

Wonderful Activity Imparted by a Famous Remedy.

The appearance of pimples, boils, skin eruptions and all evidence of impure blood calls for S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. Cathartics, purges, laxatives and salves won't do.

No amount of bile will destroy certain germs which cause blood and skin eruptions. They are deep down in the blood tissues, perhaps in the very marrow of the bones. And such a condition calls for the searching influence of S. S. S. It is indeed a remarkable remedy, since it is taken up by the blood current and never loses its medical influence. On and on it goes, through and through the entire system and always with the same wonderful effect to dislodge germs, destroy their activity and banish them from the system, giving nature and skin to throw them out completely.

The stimulating stagnant blood provides a rational exhilaration to the nerve centers and thereby the natural functions of the body are aroused to cast out intruders, no matter how strongly intrenched they may be. It requires a modern remedy that will destroy within us the germs that eat into our vitals calls for drugs that destroy our very existence. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist and for special advice on severe blood disorders write at once to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 168 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not accept a substitute. Insist upon what you ask for.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The police have been particularly active during the past few months in bringing about the enforcement of the light law when applied to automobiles. This law is supposed to apply to horse-drawn vehicles as much as to motor vehicles. Surprise is often expressed when drivers of horse-drawn vehicles failing to respect this law do not seem to be treated with the same strict accounting as do motor drivers.

This matter was forcibly drawn to the attention of a well-known official who one evening recently, in company with a friend, saw no less than three horse-drawn vehicles without the prescribed headlight. When two of the drivers were asked where their lights were, neither both promptly replied: "They have just gone out." And the third one did not have a lamp.

These accuses would have carried little, if any, weight had they been made by motorists and surprise is often expressed at the lack of prosecuting drivers of horse-drawn vehicles.

Many matters of interest to automobile drivers and owners were discussed and considered at the annual banquet of the Massachusetts Automobile Operators' Association held last evening in the American House. Addresses were made by the president of the association and men in public life and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Uncle Sam Out for a Home Run in the Prosperity League

Confidence Has Returned, the Glooms Have Been Thrown Overboard and the American People Have Decided That, No Matter What Happens Across the Water, Their Own Country Is the Richest and Finest This Side of Jordan and That the Scare Is Hereby Declared Off

Cartoonist Powers has been inspired by the opening of the baseball season to draw a picture of Uncle Sam, with prosperity as his bat, about to knock depression over the fence.

It is a picture full of life and action, and it epitomizes the present situation very accurately.

Great things are happening around us at the present time. The United States has thrown off the idea that her prosperity depends upon incidents in the Old World.

For some months after the war our financiers and business men generally were in a blue funk. They were afraid to start anything because of the possible effect the war might have upon building a new factory in Missouri or extending a railroad in Idaho.

Wall Street, with its customary caution, crawled into a hole the day after the nations of Europe began their efforts for the prevention of over-population, and pulled the hole in after it.

All the glooms, scarecrows, pessimists and alarmists went through the land preaching woe.

But the American people went right along attending to business. Where one industry suffered because of the war another was created by it.

The farmers out West went right ahead with their labor, and the result is bumper crops. Factories began to put on night shifts. The army of the unemployed began to shrink back to its original professional proportions.

Finally Wall Street, which scents everything first, ventured to emerge. It opened its ferret eyes and poked its prescient head out into the sunlight.

There wasn't any evidence visible of any catastrophe, so Wall Street unlocked its front doors and resumed business very cautiously.

Even those of us who do not read the financial news are aware that something extraordinary is happening in the stock market.

The American people, having plenty of money lying around loose, have jumped into the market and gobbled up all the good things that were available at bargain prices.

Having put depression outside the fence, Uncle Sam, the Demon batsman, is now knocking the stock market skyward.

Everywhere there is an air of confidence. People are sure the war will be over in a few months, or if it isn't that it won't matter very much as far as we are concerned. All the enterprises that have been delayed for months are now being started and things are humming, there is no question about it.

Meanwhile, mind you, this war is still going on in Europe. The armies are practically where they were six months ago, and the final result is still on the knees of the gods.

The American people have simply come to the conclusion that no matter what happens across the water, this country is the richest, finest, healthiest, happiest and most fortunate land this side of Jordan, and there isn't any use at all in being scared.

Toot, toot! All aboard for Prosperity!

Where the Swiss Are Wise

The Swiss are shouldering an income tax, with no $3,000 exemption clause, to pay for mobilization. Class spirit has never had much grip on Switzerland, still a republic of the old school.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why keep parroting the charge that the $3,000 exemption in the United States income tax is a manifestation of class spirit?

In Switzerland there are comparatively few incomes in excess of that amount. The natural resources and natural monopolies that in this country have created many of our swollen fortunes, in that little Alpine republic are held for the benefit of the State, and help to pay its expenses.

In our country the system is to let private individuals enrich themselves by the ownership of railroads, express companies, telegraphs and telephones, water power and electric power. Having given all of this public wealth into private hands, we take back a trivial share of it to meet public needs, and the rich men thus taxed set up a loud cry about being the victims of "class spirit."

In Switzerland they keep these public assets for the public good. They do not use the functions of government to build up colossal fortunes. One man profits as much from the government as another, and there is no necessity for establishing inequality in taxation to correct inequalities in the public favor.

American Philosophy of Today

By ELBERT HUBBARD

THE American philosophy had its germ in the minds of Jefferson and Franklin. It is founded on the science of economics.

Just here, in order that we may speak a common language, a few definitions are in order: Economics is the science of production, distribution and use of wealth.

Science is accurate, organized knowledge founded on fact.

All that which is simply assumed, believed, conjectured, taken on statement or read out of printed books is unscientific, no matter how plausible.

All practical business men are scientists.

Business is a vocation; philosophy is, or should be, an avocation.

To make a business of philosophy is to institutionalize and dilute it.

Religion is philosophy touched with emotion.

Philosophy is our highest conception of life, its duties and its destiny.

Modern philosophy is the distilled essence of wisdom that naturally flows from science.

Transportation, manufacturing, distribution, advertising, salesmanship, are all variants of business.

Each and all are scientific: that is, capable of analysation and demonstration.

Weight, size, color, number, qualities and time are all elements of science.

Science is understood, theology believed.

Psychology is the science of human minds and their relationship, one to another.

The American Philosophy is one of work, play, study, laughter and love, mixed in right proportion, as a prophylactic against all human ills.

It teaches that only the busy person is happy, and that systematic, daily, useful work is man's greatest blessing.

This country is built on business.

We are a nation of workers, builders, inventors, creators, producers.

We are the richest country, per capita, in the world; and our wealth has all come from the farm, the forest, the factory, the mine, the sea.

We have dug, plowed, pumped, smelted, refined, transported and manufactured. We did not inherit our wealth; neither have we laid tribute on other countries as did those earlier civilizations.

Any individual who uses the word "commercial" as an epithet, who regards business enterprise as synonymous with graft and greed, who speaks of certain men as "self-made" and others as "educated," who gives more attention to war than to peace, who seeks to destroy rather than to create and build up, is essentially un-American.

The word "education" sometimes stands for idleness, but the American Philosophy symbols work, effort, industry. It means intelligent, thoughtful, reasonable and wise busy-ness—helping yourself by helping others.

The world's big prizes in honor and money in the future will go to the business man. To him we must look for a Science of Living that will eradicate poverty, disease, superstition and all that dissipates and destroys.

The day is dawning!

SANCTUM SANCTORUM

By JANE M'LEAN

UP the wide stairs and through the deeper gloom
Of the dark hall, and then, this is her room.
Open the door and linger softly here,
On the warm threshold, intimately dear.
Here is her book, still open, lately read,
And on her rug the softly slippered tread
Of her small feet, and in the air the stir
Of that faint odor ever dear to her.
Here is her desk, a scribbled page thereon.
Still warm from her soft palm, yet she is gone.
This is her room—we'll keep it just the same—
Her own belongings marked with her dear name.
Touched with the sun that lingering seems to smile—
She has stepped out for just a little while.

In-Shoots

Self-made men always take the greatest delight in complimenting themselves on the excellence of the job.

Some men love their homes so much that they want their wives to stand guard over them night and day and avoid the bargain sales.

It is impossible for a married man of modest means to hustle for the dust and keep up a Romeo style of love making at the same time.

Bread cast upon waters in the form of a campaign contribution does not always come back in the shape of a fat appointment.

The perpetual knocker seldom makes a base hit.

It has been noticed that the newspaper fashion editors do not always dress that way.

In order to be recognized, genius often has to display a few yellow streaks now and then.

Never worry because people speak ill of you—unless it is true.

Some men are born liars; others are "oldest inhabitants."

Poverty and Ambition Do World's Best Work

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

HERE is the cry of a young ambitious soul:

"I am so tired of my environment; I want a chance to get out into the world and make something of myself; the world is unjust; I am poor and there is no one to sympathize with me; I wish I could find some one with heart, who would lend me money to start life; there is so much money thrown away on worthless things in this world.

"I have talent in music, and if some one would help me, I would prove worthy, I know," etc.

This is not the attitude of mind which betters things.

It is worse than useless to cry out about the injustice of the world.

It is folly to sit down and wish some one would lend us money.

It is a waste of sympathy to bestow pity upon ourselves.

Poverty and ambition have created some of the most wonderful marvels of art; they have produced great poems, great songs, great pictures, great inventions. It is a splendid combination, and a young woman or a young man who possesses the two ought to give thanks to God.

Wealth and ambition are rarely more than acquaintances.

They seldom become intimate enough to work in co-operation.

But poverty and ambition know each other so well and are so constantly in close association that they understand all the ways and means of reaching a given goal.

There is no height they have not climbed, no effort they have not made, no obstacle they have not overcome.

If you, my dear young lady, are tired of your environment, if you ARE TIRED ENOUGH OF IT, you will find the way to change it.

You will move heavenly forces by the power of your desire for better things, and the way will open. If you have talent, and ambition, and perseverance, and patience, and industry, you will make the world recognize the fact.

And you will make the Unseen Friends about you recognize your determination and bring them to your assistance.

But you will never accomplish what you wish by crying out at the world's cruelty and injustice and selfishness.

Neither men nor angels care to listen to that kind of talk.

And every time you give utterance to such complaints you only make the path more difficult for your own feet.

Neither will you attain your purpose by indulging in imagination and expecting some philanthropical person to lend you money.

Borrowed money proves [illegible] often lost self-reliance.

Better wash dishes and take care of children, or wait on table, and earn money to get a start in the world than to incur debt.

Once in a thousand instances a loan is a kindness.

But, as a rule, it is a misfortune to have money to use which you have not earned, or which does not come to you as some kind of a reward.

We are sent upon earth to work out our own destinies, to earn our rewards, to win our goals, and to develop our own mines, and mind.

ANY HUMAN BEING WHO EARNESTLY AND INTENSELY DESIRES TO BETTER HIS LIFE CAN DO IT ALONE AND UNAIDED SAVE BY THE DIVINE HELPERS.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

That's What They All Say!

Jess Willard attributes his success in the ring to his affection for his wife and family.

"I'M successful in my callin'," said the pirate,
"For the reason that—no matter where I roam
O'er the reelin', rollin' ocean—I'm a pattern of devotion
To the lovely little wife I've left at home.
Every time a ship goes scuttlin' to the bottom,
